President Stands Atop Part of Garrison Dam

President Eisenhower looks over the Missouri valley near Bismarck, N. D., Thursday with Governor Norman Brunsdale of North Dakota and Gen. Samuel Sturgis, chief of the Army Corps of Engineers, at official closure ceremonies. He told a crowd of 5,000 the great earth fill dam will provide power and flood control in a region where private power interests could not handle the job.

Eisenhower Hits Trend Of Old Rule

President Says Nation Runs Grave Risk if Democrats Return With Socialism

Custer State Park, S. D., June 12 (AP) — President Eisenhower says "creeping socialism struck at the United States" during the last 20 years of Democratic administration. And the nation runs a grave risk "if that group takes over again."

The President swatted the political opposition in an informal talk last night to about 500 South Dakota Republican leaders.

He addressed the leaders a few hours after arriving here from nearby Mt. Rushmore where he told another GOP rally his administration has made a "good beginning" toward a regime serving "the interests and needs of all our citizens."

Eisenhower is staying at the state game lodge in the Black Hills, the same quarters Calvin Coolidge occupied when he vacationed in the area as President in 1927.

Will Receive Degree

Interrupting his speaking tour of five states, Eisenhower will remain here until Saturday morning, then fly to Hanover, N. H. on Sunday he will receive an honorary degree from Dartmouth College, and speak later in the day at ceremonies dedicating Sagamore Hill, the home of President Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, Long Island, New York.

Today's schedule—trout fishing. When Eisenhower arrived here yesterday he fished for two hours before dinner. He caught five trout, kept two of the larger ones and snagged his finger slightly on a fishhook.

After dinner the President went down the road to Calvin Coolidge Inn to talk to South Dakota GOP leaders.

Calls for Hard Work

Striking a theme he also sounded at Mount Rushmore, the President called for hard work in the party to keep it in power after 20 years on the outside. He said he doesn't like to be an alarmist but that for the last 20 years "creeping socialism has been striking in the United States."

The situation, he added, has not always been "the fault of a few long-haired academic men in Washington." Some people, he said, have not been "quick enough to resent socialism if we thought it would benefit us."

As he did so often during the campaign, Eisenhower called for a middle of the road course, "avoiding indifference on the one hand and socialism on the other."

Then, sounding a new note, he declared:

"If the group takes over again that wants socialism, we very gravely run the risk that we've had our last chance. We wouldn't easily recover."

On the way to mount Rushmore Thursday the President spoke before a crowd of about 5,000 persons at ceremonies marking a stage in completion of Garrison Dam in North Dakota.

Aggressors Are Warned

He said there the United States must "keep our material strength great" and say to would-be aggressors:

"Don't attack us except at your peril, because we are going to live under God as a free, secure and peaceful people."

At Mount Rushmore Eisenhower listed what he termed specific achievements of this administration since it took office January 20.

He said there has been progress in foreign affairs toward free world collective security, in mod-

Envoy Says Sanctions Threatened

Dr. Yang Says Official of UN Reported U. S. Might Be Forced to Cut Aid

Philadelphia, June 12 (AP)—A charge that the republic of Korea had been threatened with a United Nations economic embargo to force acceptance of the proposed truce terms cast its shadow all the way to Panmunjom today despite speedy diplomatic denials.

The charge was made yesterday by South Korea's ambassador to the U. S., Dr. You Chan Yang, during a news conference following the dedication of a blood donor center here.

The 56-year-old physician-ambassador said "certain UN officials"—he declined to give any names—had made an oral threat that the UN might force the U. S. to cut off economic and military aid to South Korea if that country refused to join in the truce expected at any moment.

Brisk Reaction

That statement brought a quick, bristling reaction from U. S. circles. A State Department spokesman commented:

"Any implication that the United States uses famine and human suffering for political purposes is false, and those who make such statements know that it is false."

The headquarters of Gen. Mark Clark in Tokyo pointed to a previous denial of a similar report and a UN command spokesman in the Japanese capital declined comment.

Dr. Yang's fellow diplomat—South Korea's UN Representative Col. Ben C. Limb—expressed astonishment at the accusation and said he knew of no such attempt at international bullying.

Dr. Yang specifically denied that he meant any threat had been made by the U. S. However, Washington observers were inclined to consider his statement as a slap at U. S. officials acting in the name of the UN.

U. S. Dominant Power

The United States, since the start of the Korean war, has been far and away the dominant power in the UN command. And the U. S. has directed the truce negotiations at Panmunjom, with President Eisenhower taking the lead in trying to persuade South Korea to accept the truce terms.

Dr. Yang said he felt other UN members were pressuring the U. S. into its present policy in Korea, but he hastened to add that he did not believe such tactics would cause the U. S. to order a cutoff of food and other economic supplies to his homeland.

The U. S. State Department spokesman's choice of words in issuing a denial was significant—"any implication that the United States uses famine and human suffering, etc." The denial did not touch on the charge of a threatened military embargo.

It has been generally accepted that the U. S.—and other UN nations—would cut off the flow of guns and other weapons to South Korea in the event that nation continues to fight after the truce has been signed. The threat of such an embargo may have been transmitted to Seoul.

Arrested for Speeding

William Taylor, 34, of Bloomington will have a hearing in City Court tomorrow at 9 a. m. on a charge of speeding over North Front street, near Wall, Thursday night. He was arrested by Patrolman Sheldon O'Rourke and Kenneth Gaffney, who claim he was driving at 45 miles an hour.

Armistice Appears Matter of Few Days; Parades Continue

Matteawan Escapee Seized

Raymond Wood, 27, one of three criminally insane fugitives from Matteawan State Hospital, Beacon, stands between his captors, Patrolman Benjamin Puff, left, and hospital guard Philip del Vescovo, after he was seized near Hopewell Junction. Wood, accused slayer of three Oneonta residents, escaped from Matteawan early June 7. Police report capture of second of the trio near Hudson. Third man is still at large.

UN Believes ROK Won't Fight Alone

Wounded South Korean Vets Stage Sit-Down Before U. S. Embassy in Pusan

Seoul, June 12 (AP)—South Koreans chanted, marched and wept through their fourth straight day of anti-truce demonstrations today as allied and Red staff officers worked in secret on the last details of an armistice that appears almost a certainty.

The stubborn South Korean nation—and its unbending President, Syngman Rhee—gave no outward sign of changing the violent opposition to a ceasefire that would leave the battered peninsula divided politically.

However, a truce appears only a matter of days away—the time it takes the staff officers to finish the final document in morning and afternoon sessions at Panmunjom.

The UN command apparently is proceeding undaunted with its armistice plans in the belief that South Korea won't make good its threats to reject the truce and fight the Reds alone.

Two staff officer groups from each side have been meeting at Panmunjom since the historic prisoner of war exchange agreement was signed Monday.

One group, believed to be drawing a final line to separate the forces in a truce, met late Friday afternoon after its morning session.

Other Group Recesses

The other group, believed writing details of an overall prisoner exchanged, recessed until 11 a. m. Saturday (9 p. m. Friday EST).

There still appeared to be a few days of work before the lower-level officers would call the top negotiators back to approve it.

As the staff officers worked on, South Koreans marched noisily in Seoul and sat down in Pusan to protest the impending truce.

Four hundred men paraded in front of allied correspondents' billets in Seoul, pushing past a single line of metropolitan police to the gates of the compound, where they chanted "Go north! Go north!".

About 400 girls visited the correspondents' billets where they sang, shouted slogans and broke into loud crying on signal from their leaders.

In Pusan, shots were fired in the

West Approach Is Planned to Give Contractors Access

The State Department of Public Works will receive bids on July 9 for grading and drainage work on the west approach of the proposed Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge.

The information was contained in a letter to Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks of this city from W. J. LaFleur, director of public relations for the state public works department. The letter, dated June 11, was received at Wicks' local office today.

The contract to be advertised will include the rough grading of the approach from Route 32 eastward to the bride's west abutment, a distance of .67 mile.

Provides Access

Completion of the contract will provide bridge contractors with access to the bridge site.

Estimated cost of the grading and drainage called for is $163,000.

Another project for which the Department of Public Works will receive bids on July 9, according to LaFleur's letter, is the reconstruction with asphalt concrete of 5.46 miles of Route 23A between Hunter and Tannersville. Pavement widths within business sections will be 40 feet, with the remainder of the route to be 24 feet wide. Estimated cost of this Greene county project is $1,128,000.

Also to be received on that date will be bids for the widening to a minimum of 24 feet and the resurfacing with asphalt concrete of Route 145 from Cooksburg southeast through Durham and East Durham, a distance of 8.83 miles, in Albany and Greene counties. Estimated cost is $374,000.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, June 12 (AP)—The position of the treasury June 10: Net budget receipts $135,710,981.43. Budget expenditures $161,710,834.09. Cash balance $2,636,843,302.91. Customs receipts for month $19,341,624.31. Budget receipts fiscal year July 1 $56,610,873,011.58. Budget expenditures fiscal year $68,871,055,345.20. Budget deficit $12,260,182,333.62. Czechs Stage Riots Against Reds and Raise Flag of U.S.A.

Pilsen Paper Says Acts Aimed at Ending Red Regime in Nation

Vienna, Austria, June 12 (AP)—Authoritative reports reaching the west today from Czechoslovakia said that Communist-led country has been shaken by riots, large-scale walkouts and slowdown strikes following a drastic currency reform. Rioting workers in Pilsen were said to have raised the American flag and pillaged the town hall.

The reports were partly confirmed by the Pilsen newspaper Pravda which said the demonstrations in that city were aimed at "overthrowing the Communist regime." It reported that the demonstrators trampled pictures of Stalin and the late Czech President Klement Gottwald.

Guns Are Mounted

A "non-refugee eyewitness source" quoted by Radio Free Europe said that as late as last Friday, police, militiamen and soldiers still patrolled Pilsen and machineguns were mounted at strategic points.

The privately financed American radio station at Munich, Germany, in a survey of reports from Czech refugees, said workers had left their jobs or were on slowdown strikes in such industrial cities as Koprivinca, Novy Jicin, Prague, Velke Opice and Pilsen.

One report quoted by the station said that miners at Ostrava beat a woman member of the Czech Militia to death after militia units had killed three striking workers. Communist functionaries among the workers reportedly threw their party badges to the ground.

Follow Government Order

The troubles followed a government order calling in old currency and issuing new money based on the Russian ruble. Every Czech was obliged to exchange his money at the rate of five to 50 crowns for one new one. Thus robbing millions of their savings.

Accounts of the Pilsen rioting, reaching Vienna today from reliable sources, said workers at the giant Skoda armaments plant began demonstrating June 1—The Monday following the weekend currency announcment.

Raising the Stars and Stripes, the reports said, the workers stormed the town hall, tore down pictures of Communists heroes

Riehl, Local Salesman, Spots Two Matteawan Men Near Hudson, Capture Follows

A tip furnished Thursday afternoon by an alert Kingston salesman led to the capture of two escapees from Matteawan State Hospital. The men, at large since last Sunday, were considered "extremely dangerous."

Donald Riehl of 174 Linderman avenue spotted the two men near Hudson at 2:30 p. m. and notified police of that city.

Acting on the tip, police were able to capture William Shanks, 30, of Brooklyn.

The other man, William Schmit, 20, of Ronkonkoma, L. I., escaped into the marsh on the city's outskirts, but more than 100 police, state troopers and institution guards converged upon the area and at 3 a. m. today Schmit bolted from the swamp and was overpowered by the waiting officers.

Wood Captured Earlier

The third man of the trio that sawed their way to freedom last Sunday had been captured in Fishkill late Wednesday night. He was Raymond Wood, 27, of Oneonta.

Riehl, a salesman employed by General Foods, was driving out of Hudson toward the Rip Van Winkle bridge about 2:30 p. m. when he noticed two men come out on the highway from the weeds.

Glancing in the rear-view mirror, Riehl said, he noticed the men split up, one crossing to the opposite side of the highway. Proceeding down the road a short distance, Riehl turned around and returned to Hudson, passing the men, and stopped at the top of the hill where a patrolman was on duty.

The patrolman, a special assigned to school traffic duty, was unable to leave his post, but informed Riehl that to his knowledge the fugitives had not been caught.

Once again Riehl turned around, passed the men who were walking

White House Says No Letter Is Sent

Washington, June 12 (AP)—James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, denied today a published report from Seoul that President Eisenhower had rushed a new message to Syngman Rhee, president of South Korea.

The report attributed the statement to a high Republic of Korea source.

Hagerty told reporters the report is not correct and added:

"There has been no letter or message to President Syngman Rhee from the President of the United States."

In response to a question, Hagerty repeated the White House has received no reply from Rhee to Eisenhower's letter of last Sunday.

Malenkov Ends First 100 Days as Premier

Soviet Foreign Affairs Appear Better Than Does Russia's Internal Scene

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Anaylst

The Soviet regime under Premier Georgi Malenkov is 100 days old tomorrow. In foreign affairs Moscow may look on the period as a success, but internally the indications seem to add up to insecurity and nervousness.

By use of the most stubborn peace offensive to date, the new regime has delivered preliminary sledgehammer blows on a wedge evidently intended to split allied unity. But some of the reason for the peace offensive appears to stem from internal considerations within the USSR itself and the Communist empire in eastern Europe and Asia.

The day after the Kremlin announced the death of Joseph Stalin, Georgi Maxmilianovitch Malenkov was proclaimed premier. For a short time there was a flurry of glorification and it appeared he might attempt to be Stalin's full successor. But the glorification stopped. Malenkov has had to share his power.

Will this rule by committee last in a totalitarian state? Probably not. In the first hundred days there has been much evidence that the struggle for power at the top is not ended, that the Soviet army still contains the seeds of a threat to the top Communist rulers, that the party has had to make many striking concessions to Soviet public feelings. All this has indicated insecurity at the top level.

In foreign affairs, the outstanding feature of the new regime was the peace offensive, leading up to the Korean truce developments, other tactical retreats in Germany and Austria, and stepped up propaganda against the western allies in the backward countries of Africa and Asia.

Domestically, these developments stood out:

1. A press attack on "one-man rule," with overtones of a revolt against the memory of the dictator Stalin.

2. The "rights" campaign, directed at the Soviet public to persuade it that the 1936 constitution is its protector, that people can work and live without fear of arbitrary arrest and imprisonment. Tied in with this was the amnesty liberating certain classes of persons in prisons and labor camps.

3. The reversal of the "doctors' plot." The stage had been set for a show trial of doctors, some of them Jewish, accused of conspiring to kill Soviet leaders. Suddenly the doctors were freed, their accusers arrested. There is much speculation that Stalin himself originated the plot.

4. The streamlining of the government, giving more authority to ministries in the fields for which they are responsible, indicating an attempt to cut through the vast maze of Soviet bureaucracy built up over several decades.

5. Reversal of some of the political decisions of the 19th Communist Party Congress of last October, reverting to rule at the top by a small clique, now called a Presidium of the Party, but an actuality the same thing as the supposedly abolished Poltiboro.

6. The severe crackdown on parties and governments in the 15 republics outside the Russian Soviet federated Soviet Republic (Great Russia). In the Republic of Georgia, birthplace of Stalin and home state of Police Czar Laverenty P. Beria, for example, the top Communist leadership was purged and many were arrested on charges of fomenting "nationalist feelings" among the Georgians. There were similar shakeups in many other places, such as Uzbekistan, Armenia, Azerbaidjan, the Ukraine and the Baltic Republics.

After 100 days, the impression is that Malenkov rules in combination with Beria, and that they are mutually dependent. V. M. Molotov is listed as third man in a triumvirate, but the indications have been that he is unwanted there by the other two. However, Molotov's strong personal following in the Communist party and the army continues to keep him at the top of the heap.

The arrangement probably will persist for a while. The collegium ruling the Soviet Union seems in agreement on the program facing the country at the present time: An enormous buildup of economic strength at the expense of the Soviet consumers, to exert more

Sharper Slashes Are Ahead For U.S. Foreign Aid Budget

Washington, June 12 (AP)—with 9 per cent already lopped off President Eisenhower's pared-down foreign aid budget, a House Appropriations Committee member predicted today "much sharper slashes" will be made.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday voted 18-5 to approve $4,998,732,500 for overseas aid in the fiscal year beginning July 1. This was 476 million dollars less than the President's pruned down requests and about 35 per cent less than recommended by former President Truman.

The committee vote only established a ceiling for the actual appropriations, which must be approved later.

Rep. Glenn R. Davis (R.-Wis.), a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee concerned with foreign aid, said his group is talking of deeper slashes and will study the bill "very carefully."

The House committee authorization—which compares with $5,312,732,500 approved earlier by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—is expected to reach the House floor sometime after the middle of next week.

The House committee also voted, against the President's implied views, to withdraw more than one billion dollars of new funds earmarked for European military aid unless the six-nation

U.S. Troops Repel 1,500 Reds In New Central Front Attacks

Seoul, June 12 (AP)—U. S. infantrymen today smashed new attacks by two battalions of Chinese Reds in Central Korea while South Koreans battled to plug a gap in the main allied line on the eastern end of the front.

About 1,500 Chinese troops charged through driving rain behind a thunderous artillery and mortar barrage in the second day of heavy attacks on rugged outpost Harry. They were thrown back by fresh U. S. reinforcements after cutting off the outpost, the Eighth Army said.

The army said that in two days of fighting for the strategic height 10 miles northeast of Chorwon an estimated 500 Reds were killed and 1,000 wounded. Six attacks involving more than 1,000 Reds were thrown back Wednesday.

Associated Press Correspondent Milo Farneti, reporting from the Third Division front, said the Reds' artillery knocked out numerous bunkers and at one time allied soldiers had stacked up about 100 Chinese bodies as protection against shell fragments.

Eighth Army Commander, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, visited headquarters of the 15th Regiment, fighting to hold Harry.

Lt. Col. Jess Willoughby, commander of the Third Battalion, said the American soldiers "are

Another project for which the Department of Public Works will receive bids on July 9, according to LaFleur's letter, is the reconstruction with asphalt concrete of 5.46 miles of Route 23A between Hunter and Tannersville. Pavement widths within business sections will be 40 feet, with the remainder of the route to be 24 feet wide. Estimated cost of this Greene county project is $1,128,000.

Also to be received on that date will be bids for the widening to a minimum of 24 feet and the resurfacing with asphalt concrete of Route 145 from Cooksburg southeast through Durham and East Durham, a distance of 8.83 miles, in Albany and Greene counties. Estimated cost is $374,000.

Czechs Stage Riots Against Reds and Raise Flag of U.S.A.

Pilsen Paper Says Acts Aimed at Ending Red Regime in Nation

Vienna, Austria, June 12 (AP)—Authoritative reports reaching the west today from Czechoslovakia said that Communist-led country has been shaken by riots, large-scale walkouts and slowdown strikes following a drastic currency reform. Rioting workers in Pilsen were said to have raised the American flag and pillaged the town hall.

The reports were partly confirmed by the Pilsen newspaper Pravda which said the demonstrations in that city were aimed at "overthrowing the Communist regime." It reported that the demonstrators trampled pictures of Stalin and the late Czech President Klement Gottwald.

Guns Are Mounted

A "non-refugee eyewitness source" quoted by Radio Free Europe said that as late as last Friday, police, militiamen and soldiers still patrolled Pilsen and machineguns were mounted at strategic points.

The privately financed American radio station at Munich, Germany, in a survey of reports from Czech refugees, said workers had left their jobs or were on slowdown strikes in such industrial cities as Koprivinca, Novy Jicin, Prague, Velke Opice and Pilsen.

One report quoted by the station said that miners at Ostrava beat a woman member of the Czech Militia to death after militia units had killed three striking workers. Communist functionaries among the workers reportedly threw their party badges to the ground.

Follow Government Order

The troubles followed a government order calling in old currency and issuing new money based on the Russian ruble. Every Czech was obliged to exchange his money at the rate of five to 50 crowns for one new one. Thus robbing millions of their savings.

Accounts of the Pilsen rioting, reaching Vienna today from reliable sources, said workers at the giant Skoda armaments plant began demonstrating June 1—The Monday following the weekend currency announcement.

Raising the Stars and Stripes, the reports said, the workers stormed the town hall, tore down pictures of Communists heroes

Riehl, Local Salesman, Spots Two Matteawan Men Near Hudson, Capture Follows

A tip furnished Thursday afternoon by an alert Kingston salesman led to the capture of two escapees from Matteawan State Hospital. The men, at large since last Sunday, were considered "extremely dangerous."

Donald Riehl of 174 Linderman avenue spotted the two men near Hudson at 2:30 p. m. and notified police of that city.

Acting on the tip, police were able to capture William Shanks, 30, of Brooklyn.

The other man, William Schmit, 20, of Ronkonkoma, L. I., escaped into the marsh on the city's outskirts, but more than 100 police, state troopers and institution guards converged upon the area and at 3 a. m. today Schmit bolted from the swamp and was overpowered by the waiting officers.

Wood Captured Earlier

The third man of the trio that sawed their way to freedom last Sunday had been captured in Fishkill late Wednesday night. He was Raymond Wood, 27, of Oneonta.

Riehl, a salesman employed by General Foods, was driving out of Hudson toward the Rip Van Winkle bridge about 2:30 p. m. when he noticed two men come out on the highway from the weeds.

Glancing in the rear-view mirror, Riehl said, he noticed the men split up, one crossing to the opposite side of the highway. Proceeding down the road a short distance, Riehl turned around and returned to Hudson, passing the men, and stopped at the top of the hill where a patrolman was on duty.

The patrolman, a special assigned to school traffic duty, was unable to leave his post, but informed Riehl that to his knowledge the fugitives had not been caught.

Once again Riehl turned around, passed the men who were walking

White House Says No Letter Is Sent

Washington, June 12 (AP)—James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, denied today a published report from Seoul that President Eisenhower had rushed a new message to Syngman Rhee, president of South Korea.

The report attributed the statement to a high Republic of Korea source.

Hagerty told reporters the report is not correct and added:

"There has been no letter or message to President Syngman Rhee from the President of the United States."

In response to a question, Hagerty repeated the White House has received no reply from Rhee to Eisenhower's letter of last Sunday.

Malenkov Ends First 100 Days as Premier

Soviet Foreign Affairs Appear Better Than Does Russia's Internal Scene

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Anaylst

The Soviet regime under Premier Georgi Malenkov is 100 days old tomorrow. In foreign affairs Moscow may look on the period as a success, but internally the indications seem to add up to insecurity and nervousness.

By use of the most stubborn peace offensive to date, the new regime has delivered preliminary sledgehammer blows on a wedge evidently intended to split allied unity. But some of the reason for the peace offensive appears to stem from internal considerations within the USSR itself and the Communist empire in eastern Europe and Asia.

The day after the Kremlin announced the death of Joseph Stalin, Georgi Maxmilianovitch Malenkov was proclaimed premier. For a short time there was a flurry of glorification and it appeared he might attempt to be Stalin's full successor. But the glorification stopped. Malenkov has had to share his power.

Will this rule by committee last in a totalitarian state? Probably not. In the first hundred days there has been much evidence that the struggle for power at the top is not ended, that the Soviet army still contains the seeds of a threat to the top Communist rulers, that the party has had to make many striking concessions to Soviet public feelings. All this has indicated insecurity at the top level.

In foreign affairs, the outstanding feature of the new regime was the peace offensive, leading up to the Korean truce developments, other tactical retreats in Germany and Austria, and stepped up propaganda against the western allies in the backward countries of Africa and Asia.

Domestically, these deveolpments stood out:

1. A press attack on "one-man rule," with overtones of a revolt against the memory of the dictator Stalin.

2. The "rights" campaign, directed at the Soviet public to persuade it that the 1936 constitution is its protector; that people can work and live without fear of arbitrary arrest and imprisonment. Tied in with this was the amnesty liberating certain classes of persons in prisons and labor camps.

3. The reversal of the "doctors' plot." The stage had been set for a show trial of doctors, some of them Jewish, accused of conspiring to kill Soviet leaders. Suddenly the doctors were freed, their accusers arrested. There is much speculation that Stalin himself originated the plot.

4. The streamlining of the government, giving more authority to ministries in the fields for which they are responsible, indicating an attempt to cut through the vast maze of Soviet bureaucracy built up over several decades.

5. Reversal of some of the political decisions of the 19th Communist Party Congress of last October, reverting to rule at the top by a small clique, now called a Presidium of the Party, but an actuality the same thing as the supposedly abolished Poltiboro.

6. The severe crackdown on parties and governments in the 15 republics outside the Russian Soviet federated Soviet Republic (Great Russia). In the Republic of Georgia, birthplace of Stalin and home state of Police Czar Laverenty P. Beria, for example, the top Communist leadership was purged and many were arrested on charges of fomenting "nationalist feelings" among the Georgians. There were similar shakeups in many other places, such as Uzbekistan, Armenia, Azerbaidjan, the Ukraine and the Baltic Republics.

After 100 days, the impression is that Malenkov rules in combination with Beria, and that they are mutually dependent. V. M. Molotov is listed as third man in a triumvirate, but the indications have been that he is unwanted there by the other two. However, Molotov's strong personal following in the Communist party and the army continues to keep him at the top of the heap.

The arrangement probably will persist for a while. The collegium ruling the Soviet Union seems in agreement on the program facing the country at the present time: An enormous buildup of economic strength at the expense of the Soviet consumers, to exert more

Washington, June 12 (AP)—with 9 per cent already lopped off President Eisenhower's pared-down foreign aid budget, a House Appropriations Committee member predicted today "much sharper slashes" will be made.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday voted 18-5 to approve $4,998,732,500 for overseas aid in the fiscal year beginning July 1. This was 476 million dollars less than the President's pruned down requests and about 35 per cent less than recommended by former President Truman.

The committee vote only established a ceiling for the actual appropriations, which must be approved later.

Rep. Glenn R. Davis (R.-Wis.), a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee concerned with foreign aid, said his group is talking of deeper slashes and will study the bill "very carefully."

The House committee authorization—which compares with $5,312,732,500 approved earlier by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—is expected to reach the House floor sometime after the middle of next week.

The House committee also voted, against the President's implied views, to withdraw more than one billion dollars of new funds earmarked for European military aid unless the six-nation

U.S. Troops Repel 1,500 Reds In New Central Front Attacks

Seoul, June 12 (AP)—U. S. infantrymen today smashed new attacks by two battalions of Chinese Reds in Central Korea while South Koreans battled to plug a gap in the main allied line on the eastern end of the front.

About 1,500 Chinese troops charged through driving rain behind a thunderous artillery and mortar barrage in the second day of heavy attacks on rugged outpost Harry. They were thrown back by fresh U. S. reinforcements after cutting off the outpost, the Eighth Army said.

The army said that in two days of fighting for the strategic height 10 miles northeast of Chorwon an estimated 500 Reds were killed and 1,000 wounded. Six attacks involving more than 1,000 Reds were thrown back Wednesday.

Associated Press Correspondent Milo Farneti, reporting from the Third Division front, said the Reds' artillery knocked out numerous bunkers and at one time allied soldiers had stacked up about 100 Chinese bodies as protection against shell fragments.

Eighth Army Commander, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, visited headquarters of the 15th Regiment, fighting to hold Harry.

Lt. Col. Jess Willoughby, commander of the Third Battalion, said the American soldiers "are

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Tuesday's Kingston Freeman and Journal of April 30, 1912, published the following in connection with the opening of the Elks' new club house, which cost around $60,000. "The trim inside is mostly of good oak. The flooring throughout the building is of hard wood and all doors, window frames, wainscoting and stairs are of oak, highly polished. All the door handles are of oxidized silver, with the number of Kingston Lodge of Elks 550 in raised figures, and nearly all the metal work in the building contains symbolic initials or figures. At the top of the main stairway hangs a magnificent rock crystal chandelier, which was purchased in Florida by ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier, and presented to the lodge. This chandelier is fitted for either gas or electricity, and when lighted presents a glittering brilliance that illuminates the entire stairway and hallway of both floors.

"The beautiful bronze tablet enclosing a painting by Brother George Inness, Jr., a life member, of Orange Lodge, New Jersey, No. 135, is a feature of the new Elks building in Kingston."

At the time in 1912 Kingston Lodge of Elks had some 484 members, who are all listed in this dated Freeman. Albert H. Cook was exalted ruler and George Chandler, esteemed leading knight. The house rules of the lodge are also given in the 1912 Freemen. Rule 15: reads: "Members are not allowed to send employes out of the club under any consideration." "Tipping or presents to employes strictly forbidden." Rule 16 reads: "Dogs or pets will not be allowed in any part of the building." Rule 7 reads: "Gambling of every kind strictly prohibited." Rule 8, "Profane language or boisterous behavior is forbidden." I remember back in my early teens when New Year's eve was sort of 'open house' for the Elks and their friends. As far as I remember there was no charge for admission but I think you could buy light refreshments. There was always a good orchestra and folks were friendly. Ed Weber, one of my neighbors, used to invite us girls as his guests. Maybe those were happy years, or because I loved to dance and dancing was popular in those days but I know I always had a grand time at the Elks on New Year's eve.

Reading along the May 3 issue of The Freeman, the reception of the opening of the Elks is written up in the social column. Some 700 people visited the building when it was formally opened to the public. "The house during the evening was crowded with the leaders of Kingston's society, and presented a brilliant appearance. Major George Chandler, chairman of the reception committee, had planned the arrangements with military precision. The committee on each floor was in charge of a sergeant and a corporal, assisted by a ladies' committee, of the following ladies. Mrs. Albert H. Cook, Mrs. George Chandler, Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Everett Fowler, Mrs. Roscoe Irwin, Mrs. Herbert S. Lounsberry, Mrs. William Frederic Hoehn, Mrs. George Washburn, Mrs. George Innes, Jr., Miss Anna C. Bonesteel and Mrs. Sam Bernstein. Every lady was presented with a bouquet of violets, supplied by Valentin Burgevin Sons. Music was by Muller's orchestra and refreshments were served after which dancing followed."

Shokan

Shokan, June 11—Ed Finn was numbered among Kingstonians calling here Tuesday.

Joshua Bell, New York man who was brought up in the old village of Shokan, has arrived here for his annual summer sojourn in the country.

Freeman story of the dedication of the Kate Walton field house reminds older residents of the twin villages that the widely known mathematics teacher and her brother, Charlie, and sister, Nina, all grew up in the old village of Olive Branch at the Hurley town line. She was a first cousin of Elwyn Winchell and Mrs. Frank Warren.

Local observers point out the unusually large number of birds here this spring. This is good news to nature lovers who have long viewed with alarm the serious inroads made upon shade and forest trees by insect pests. In other words: The more birds the fewer borers and foliage chewers.

Minnie Adsit, assistant postmaster, has resumed her duties at the local office after having been ill.

David Ballantine called in the village Saturday.

Birthdays falling Saturday, June 13, include that of Earl Elmendorf, retired member of the gate chamber force down at the Ashokan Reservoir center. Earl, who is married to the former Alice Brooks, was brought up here, one of two sons of Henry and Sarah Coons Elmendorf. He attended the Olive district school and as a young man was in the employ of the General Electric Co.

Committee for the strawberry shortcake supper in the Shokan Reformed Church basement Tuesday evening, June 16, is made up of Edna Longyear and Mrs. Sylvester Wells.

John Haggerty has bought of the Charles Greene Estate the wooded lot at the northwest corner of VanSteenburgh Lane and the reservoir road, not far from the village center. Jack plans to sell the lot which has a frontage of 200 feet on the state road and extends up to the Wendt property along the lane.

Back Pay Granted

New York, June 12 (AP)—A consent decree signed yesterday by Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy grants the wives of 20 men serving in the air force $3,300 in back pay. The wages and hours division of the Department of Labor earlier this year instituted a civil action against the Grossman Stamp Company, of 581 Sixth avenue, Manhattan, one of the largest dealers in stamps in the country, charging violations of the federal wages and hours law. The government contended that the women, whose husbands were stationed at Mitchel Field, Hempstead, N. Y., packaged stamps at home at wages ranging from 20 cents to 60 cents an hour, instead of the minimum 57-cent hourly wage required by law. The company volunteered to make up the back pay.

Cashier Slugged, Robbed

New York, June 12 (AP)—A cashier for the North British Mercantile & Insurance Co., was slugged and robbed of $3,700 by two men today as he was distributing pay envelopes in the building. The cashier, George Cable, 45, of (143-23 Poplar avenue) Flushing, Queens, was taken to Beekman Downtown Hospital for treatment of a head wound. Cable was on a stairway between the ninth and 10th floors of the building at 150 William street when the two men attacked him. Police surrounded the building within minutes after the robbery and permitted no one to leave for half an hour. A search, however, disclosed no trace of the two robbers.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Tuesday's Kingston Freeman and Journal of April 30, 1912, published the following in connection with the opening of the Elks' new club house, which cost around $60,000. "The trim inside is mostly of good oak. The flooring throughout the building is of hard wood and all doors, window frames, wainscoting and stairs are of oak, highly polished. All the door handles are of oxidized silver, with the number of Kingston Lodge of Elks 550 in raised figures, and nearly all the metal work in the building contains symbolic initials or figures. At the top of the main stairway hangs a magnificent rock crystal chandelier, which was purchased in Florida by ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier, and presented to the lodge. This chandelier is fitted for either gas or electricity, and when lighted presents a glittering brilliance that illuminates the entire stairway and hallway of both floors.

"The beautiful bronze tablet enclosing a painting by Brother George Inness, Jr., a life member, of Orange Lodge, New Jersey, No. 135, is a feature of the new Elks building in Kingston."

At the time in 1912 Kingston Lodge of Elks had some 484 members, who are all listed in this dated Freeman. Albert H. Cook was exalted ruler and George Chandler, esteemed leading knight. The house rules of the lodge are also given in the 1912 Freemen. Rule 15: reads: "Members are not allowed to send employes out of the club under any consideration." "Tipping or presents to employes strictly forbidden." Rule 16 reads: "Dogs or pets will not be allowed in any part of the building." Rule 7 reads: "Gambling of every kind strictly prohibited." Rule 8, "Profane language or boisterous behavior is forbidden." I remember back in my early teens when New Year's eve was sort of 'open house' for the Elks and their friends. As far as I remember there was no charge for admission but I think you could buy light refreshments. There was always a good orchestra and folks were friendly. Ed Weber, one of my neighbors, used to invite us girls as his guests. Maybe those were happy years, or because I loved to dance and dancing was popular in those days but I know I always had a grand time at the Elks on New Year's eve.

Reading along the May 3 issue of The Freeman, the reception of the opening of the Elks is written up in the social column. Some 700 people visited the building when it was formally opened to the public. "The house during the evening was crowded with the leaders of Kingston's society, and presented a brilliant appearance. Major George Chandler, chairman of the reception committee, had planned the arrangements with military precision. The committee on each floor was in charge of a sergeant and a corporal, assisted by a ladies' committee, of the following ladies. Mrs. Albert H. Cook, Mrs. George Chandler, Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Everett Fowler, Mrs. Roscoe Irwin, Mrs. Herbert S. Lounsberry, Mrs. William Frederic Hoehn, Mrs. George Washburn, Mrs. George Innes, Jr., Miss Anna C. Bonesteel and Mrs. Sam Bernstein. Every lady was presented with a bouquet of violets, supplied by Valentin Burgevin Sons. Music was by Muller's orchestra and refreshments were served after which dancing followed."

Onteora School Picnic

The first annual school picnic of the Onteora Central School will be held at the Woodland Valley Campsites, Phoenicia, Sunday, June 14 from 1 p. m. on. AND THAT'S REAL—Shirley Buchanan, queen of the 8th Annual Los Angeles Home Show, takes hold of the dress material on one of the 20-foot-high displays to show that it's the real McCoy. The gigantic can-can girl is one of several on display in the Mardi Gras area of the show.

Shokan

Shokan, June 11—Ed Finn was numbered among Kingstonians calling here Tuesday.

Joshua Bell, New York man who was brought up in the old village of Shokan, has arrived here for his annual summer sojourn in the country.

Freeman story of the dedication of the Kate Walton field house reminds older residents of the twin villages that the widely known mathematics teacher and her brother, Charlie, and sister, Nina, all grew up in the old village of Olive Branch at the Hurley town line. She was a first cousin of Elwyn Winchell and Mrs. Frank Warren.

Local observers point out the unusually large number of birds here this spring. This is good news to nature lovers who have long viewed with alarm the serious inroads made upon shade and forest trees by insect pests. In other words: The more birds the fewer borers and foliage chewers.

Minnie Adsit, assistant postmaster, has resumed her duties at the local office after having been ill.

David Ballantine called in the village Saturday.

Birthdays falling Saturday, June 13, include that of Earl Elmendorf, retired member of the gate chamber force down at the Ashokan Reservoir center. Earl, who is married to the former Alice Brooks, was brought up here, one of two sons of Henry and Sarah Coons Elmendorf. He attended the Olive district school and as a young man was in the employ of the General Electric Co.

Committee for the strawberry shortcake supper in the Shokan Reformed Church basement Tuesday evening, June 16, is made up of Edna Longyear and Mrs. Sylvester Wells.

John Haggerty has bought of the Charles Greene Estate the wooded lot at the northwest corner of VanSteenburgh Lane and the reservoir road, not far from the village center. Jack plans to sell the lot which has a frontage of 200 feet on the state road and extends up to the Wendt property along the lane.

Back Pay Granted

New York, June 12 (AP)—A consent decree signed yesterday by Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy grants the wives of 20 men serving in the air force $3,300 in back pay. The wages and hours division of the Department of Labor earlier this year instituted a civil action against the Grossman Stamp Company, of 581 Sixth avenue, Manhattan, one of the largest dealers in stamps in the country, charging violations of the federal wages and hours law. The government contended that the women, whose husbands were stationed at Mitchel Field, Hempstead, N. Y., packaged stamps at home at wages ranging from 20 cents to 60 cents an hour, instead of the minimum 57-cent hourly wage required by law. The company volunteered to make up the back pay.

Cashier Slugged, Robbed

New York, June 12 (AP)—A cashier for the North British Mercantile & Insurance Co., was slugged and robbed of $3,700 by two men today as he was distributing pay envelopes in the building. The cashier, George Cable, 45, of (143-23 Poplar avenue) Flushing, Queens, was taken to Beekman Downtown Hospital for treatment of a head wound. Cable was on a stairway between the ninth and 10th floors of the building at 150 William street when the two men attacked him. Police surrounded the building within minutes after the robbery and permitted no one to leave for half an hour. A search, however, disclosed no trace of the two robbers.

Free Rides Ended

Sacramento, Calif. (AP) — No more free ride on railroads for employes of the California Public Utilities Commission. Since 1912 the railroads had issued some 300 or 400 passes a year. The Senate finance committee added $50,000 to the budget to pay for such rides hereafter. Said Sen. Randolph Collier: "The employes should not have free rides on utilities they may be making rates for."

Norton, large chips of concrete were knocked from the Abeel street abutment of the Rondout creek bridge late last night, presumably by a motor vehicle that collided with it. When Norton made his report at 1 a. m. today, he said large pieces of concrete were scattered over the roadway.

Common Knowledge, Howard Levinson Says

New York, June 12 (AP)—A former City College of New York student says it was "common knowledge" that collegians were paid for playing summer basketball at Catskill mountain resorts.

Howard Levinson, 22, former CCNY student and now an army private, testified yesterday in the board of education departmental trial of Nat Holman, City College basketball coach, and his assistant, Harry (Bobby) Sand.

Both suspended, Holman and Sand are being tried on charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher, constituting neglect of duty. The charges against them stemmed from the college court scandal during which seven CCNY players admitted, in November, 1950, to taking part in "rigging" the scores of games for gamblers.

Levinson testified as a defense witness that he entered City College in February, 1950, transferring from the University of Maryland. An aspiring basketball player, he obtained a job as a bus boy in Youngs Gap Hotel, Parksville. He said he got the job—paying $10 to $12 weekly plus tips—through Dr. Samuel Winograd, CCNY faculty athletic manager.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

The truce arrangements in Korea, while a sad ending to an ill-judged beginning, will be a profound relief to thousands of families whose fighting youths have had to accept the fate of a useless war in a far-off corner of the world. The Ruminator recalls writing three years ago, when the Korean war commenced, that "we're in, but we have no out." How unfortunately true this remark turned out to be!

Let us not dwell upon this page in history which will be titled "A Stalemate That Cost Millions of Lives and Billions of Dollars."

Let us turn our thoughts instead to guessing what effect the ending of the war will have on your business. (As this was written, I'd better add, the truce had not been actually signed, but appeared probable—although the understandably refusal of the South Koreans to accept the terms had not been resolved.)

As we have discussed in recent columns, the "general opinion" has been emphatic that a let-down in business activity is a foregone conclusion in view of a truce in Korea.

When an idea becomes as "fixed" as this one has, it usually pays to seek contrary probabilities. Seldom do things work out when they are so universally anticipated.

It is well to recall that this general expectancy of a recession, or slump, has been talked about and argued back and forth for many months. It is not a new idea, which has suddenly occurred to people.

In consequence, businessmen have had ample time to think things out and prepare for a setback. There will not be anything approaching "a surprise" if business activity slows down.

The surprise will arise if the boom continues and the slump is postponed.

And from a contrary-opinion standpoint, there is a very good chance that because of this awareness of possible trouble ahead, we shall be able to avoid it—at least for some months longer.

Whenever we get into economic and business discussions, it is imperative to bring in the subject of "money." Few of us appreciate the significant role which money plays in our business lives.

Because of the sharp drop in bond prices recently—with government bonds taking the spotlight in their sinking spells—there has been much discussion of monetary affairs. But there are two sides to money management, as I think you will recognize before long. First, there is the problem of the Treasury Department which has the responsibility of managing the present huge government debt and in addition now is confronted with the cold facts that it will have to increase this debt in the coming year. Indeed, it seems probable that the debt limit set by the Congress of $275 billion will have to be lifted, unless some good fortune occurs to lessen the expected deficits.

Second, there is the Federal Reserve System which is charged with the responsibility of conducting monetary management in such fashion that there will be enough money available to accommodate business operations while at the same time the abuses of credit are not permitted to get out of hand.

It is obvious, I'm sure you will agree, that the monetary officials will not knowingly cause a business slumps to occur. That is, the Federal Reserve governing board will not adopt policies (if they can avoid them) which will throw business into a tail-spin. They are very conscious of the problems of the government debt and of the higher interest rates now required when Uncle Sam borrows new money. They know, far better than you and I, that "tight money" (money that is hard to borrow and costs more) influences a slowing up in business.

Accordingly, as a counteracting force to offset the deflationary influences of higher interest rates and falling bond prices, the Federal Reserve is likely to "ease" money conditions somewhat, from week to week, in order to prevent businessmen from getting panicky or scared. They do this by buying government securities in the open market (and by other methods) which puts more money into circulation. (Keep in mind that bank deposits are the same as money; they are spendable and circulate, just as bills and coins do). The Federal Reserve has an extraordinary power over business activity.

In brief, I think you can look for a banking policy that will help to ward off the generally expected slump for sometime to come, even with a Korean truce.

END OF BLOODSHED AND DEATH

To men of good will the world over, a truce in Korea means above all an end to three years of fighting and dying. Free men must always welcome an end to the shedding of blood, so long as that goal is not bought by surrender or appeasement.

The United States and its UN allies were willing to accept this truce for one overriding reason. We and our friends believe that the Korean war could not be won without risks and sacrifices far greater than we care to pay. Practically speaking, therefore, our leaders consider victory unattainable.

Those who do not approve this truce insist victory can be had, and Korea unified from Pusan to the Yalu. But only a few objectors grasp the full logic of their position, namely, that the quest for complete military triumph means the expenditure of thousands more lives, billions of additional dollars, and very possibly an enlarged war with the huge mainland armies of Red China.

For nearly two years, since the Communists first indicated readiness to negotiate, the conflict in Korea has been in virtual stalemate. We have been living out the alternative to full war. But even a stalemate costs heavily in men and treasure. With that painful burden upon us, and conclusive victory seemingly beyond reach, we see a truce as a worthwhile achievement in itself—the stopping of a ruthless treadmill.

All this stress upon the truce as an inconclusive end should not, however, obscure the fact that this outcome is not a defeat for the western nations but is in reality a modest victory.

We have driven the Communists from all but a tiny, useless patch of the South Korean soil they invaded on June 25, 1950. We have pressed them north from the old border at the 38th Parallel, and now occupy a substantial slice of North Korean territory. The position we hold is not ideal, but it is more defensible than the prewar line, which left the capital of Seoul badly exposed.

When we entered the war, our goal was simply to repel the invader, not to conquer and unify all Korea. Only after our successes at Inchon in September, 1950, did we raise our sights toward the Yalu and the fulfillment of what had long been a political goal of the United Nations. This change should not mar the fact that we achieved our original purpose.

The truce brings desperately desired relief from bloody combat. We should not delude ourselves that it brings anything else.

New problems flood in upon us. Will the Communists observe well the terms of the truce, or will they resort to their common practice and snarl the truce administration in hopeless deadlock and confusion?

A truce is not a peace. Will this one lead to an honorable political settlement in Korea and perhaps the whole Far East, or will it leave two armed camps with guns poised to renew the battle?

Is this truce a sign of real easing of world tensions, or will the Reds take advantage of this release from struggle to plunge into new adventures of aggression elsewhere?

The free world is joyful that the guns are falling silent in one troubled land. But it cannot relax its vigilance until the signs of hope are more real.

Sea serpents always frighten us and the reassurance of the know-it-alls that there are no such creatures helps not one whit. Perhaps it is because we like being afraid of sea-serpents, just as we enjoy being slightly frightened when we read a mystery story. At any rate the reports from off San Clemente Island in California of a nice-sized sea-serpent, about as big as a submarine, with a twelve foot neck, stimulated our imagination and helped us to understand why the men of Spain were so reluctant to go sailing off with Columbus.

We recently learned of the election of a new president of the International Union of Doll and Toy Workers. We were wondering how long Santa Claus would get away with that open shop policy of his.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

FORSAKEN KOREA

The Korean people have in their long history been the involuntary pawns in struggles for power between China and Japan, and among China, Japan and Russia.

As early as 1592, Korea was invaded by the Japanese, Hideyoshi, who laid the peninsula waste. The Chinese came to the aid of the Koreans and defeated Hideyoshi. Korea found it impossible to get rid of the Chinese, who established a loose suzerainty over that little country, which became a cause for conflict between China and Japan, and with the Russians, who had expanded their empire in Siberia until they had reached the Pacific. The Russians hoped to conquer either Manchuria or Korea to get a warm water port.

Out of this prolonged struggle came the Sino-Japanese War of 1894, which, to the surprise of Europe, Japan won. By the Treaty of Shimonoseki, Japan and China recognized the full independence of Korea, which really meant that China was put out of Korea. Russia, France, and Germany combined to keep the gains of war from Japan, which had the effect of focussing Japan's policy upon driving Russian influence permanently out of Korea and Manchuria.

By the secret Li-Lobanoff Treaty, signed in 1896 between Russia and China, each party agreed to aid the other in the event that Japan attacked Russian Far Eastern territory, or China, or Korea. The Japanese did not know the nature of the Li-Lobanoff Treaty until 1922; however, they witnessed the effects of some such agreement, as early as 1896, in the establishment of the Chinese Eastern Railway and the Russo-Chinese Bank, which eventually became the Russo-Asiatic Bank. The climax of these deals was the leasing of the cities of Port Arthur and Dairen in Manchuria to Russia.

In a word, Japan and China both lost the fruits of the war to Russia.

Great Britain was impressed by the danger of a Russian conquest of Manchuria and Korea by attrition, bribery and the already apparent breakdown of the Manchu dynasty in China. Therefore, Great Britain supported Japan and in 1902 the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was signed.

The United States had, as early as 1882, negotiated a treaty with Korea, but it was done through China, which was then in control of Korea's foreign relations. This treaty has been the cause of considerable discussion, for while it does not mention a recognition of Korean independence, the Koreans believed that that was its intention.

In 1904, the Russo-Japanese War occurred, in which the Russians were roundly trounced. The Japanese occupied Seoul and forced the Korean government to its will. By the Treaty of Portsmouth, Japan's preponderant interest in Korea was recognized by Russia and eventually by all powers, including China and the United States. The fact that Japan assigned her greatest statesman, Prince Ito, to be resident-general in Korea established the evidence that annexation would follow shortly, which it did in 1910. The name of the country was changed to Chosen.

The Japanese developed Chosen industrially, particularly producing power on the Yalu River which could serve them both in Chosen and Manchuria.

During the entire period of Japanese occupation, insurrectionist groups, based on Peking and Shanghai, labored for a liberated Korea. After 1920, Soviet Russia organized a Korean Communist Party and applied its usual methods of propaganda, infiltration, and agitation among peasants and workers. This must be said: these insurrectionist movements received no aid, from 1910 to 1950, from the United States; since 1950, Soviet Russia gave them valuable support.

After the surrender of Japan in 1945, Korea became a trusteeship of the United Nations. A line had been drawn at the 38th Parallel to arrange for the management of prisoners of war between the United States and Soviet Russia. That became a line of demarcation between North and South Korea, between Russian and American influences, between the Republic of Korea and the Communist government of Korea.

That resulted in the Korean War in which China, Russia, the United States and the United Nations intervened. By the Truce Settlement, Soviet Russia, which did no fighting and lost not a man, won the war. Korea has nothing better to look forward to than to be a satellite of Soviet Russia in due course.

This is a tale of nearly four unhappy centuries of a people who never troubled anybody.

That Body of Yours

REMOVING INFECTION

For many years the standing jest among our dentists and physicians was that the patient had had all his teeth removed but still had his rheumatism, or the patient had his tonsils removed but had developed heart disease.

Fortunately, these two sayings have gone by the board as more and more evidence is being presented by dentists and physicians of the disappearance of rheumatism and arthritis a few weeks or months, at least, after removal of infected teeth.

In the Journal of the Iowa Medical Society, Drs. L. E. January and E. O. Theilen report that in analyzing 196 cases of subacute bacterial endocarditis (inflammation of lining of the heart), formerly always fatal, now by the use of penicillin the recovery rate has risen from 0 to 74 per cent.

In this analysis, it was found that the majority of patients had underlying heart disease involving damage to heart valves resulting from rheumatic fever or from a defect at birth. Therefore, to prevent progressive irreversible heart damage, early diagnosis must be made and vigorous treatment started as soon as possible.

"Any patient with an organic heart abnormality who has a rise in temperature lasting a week should be thoroughly investigated for evidence of bacterial endocarditis. Penicillin, because of its rapid action in killing harmful organisms which cause endocarditis is considered to be the antibiotic of choice in treatment of subacute bacterial endocarditis."

Treatment should be continued for five to eight weeks and the convalescent period followed closely for evidence of recurrence or return of the symptoms.

After the patient has improved so that the disease is under control, a thorough search should be made for foci of infection. Very commonly the teeth are the offenders. Removal of the poison from the blood is not enough. The infected teeth must be removed if cure is to be obtained. Unless the infected teeth are removed, a recurrence of the heart infection is likely to occur because, as related of all infections, "the mill has closed down but there are a lot of goods left on the shelves that must be sold or removed."

I believe this testimony regarding the need of the removal of focal infection—teeth, gums, tonsils—to prevent return of the formerly fatal disease, endocarditis, should be taken at full value by our dentists, physicians and surgeons.

"Now Mind Your Table Manners"

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington (NEA)—The White House has now been forced to slap a tight secrecy classification on all the favorite recipes of President and Mrs. Eisenhower. Giving them out to food editors and other curious cooks proved to be too much of a chore for the White House staff.

The President rather fancies himself as a pretty good cook in an amateur sort of way. Mrs. Eisenhower, although not too interested in cooking, does have a couple of favorite dishes which she likes to whip up.

The new secrecy order on the First Family's favorite concoctions came to light when the National Press Club asked the President to submit a recipe for his favorite barbecue sauce. The club is running a contest to select a prize sauce for its annual barbecue and rodeo.

The word leaked out that the President was pretty disappointed at not being able to enter his barbecue formula in competition against those from his fellow (Democrat) Texans, Secretary of Health, etc., Oveta Culp Hobby, House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn and Associate Justice Tom Clark of the Supreme Court. But the new ban against recipe publicity forced Cook Eisenhower out of the running.

When Ike was in Denver last summer, organizing his campaign, the staff had numerous barbecues at which the head man insisted on preparing his own sauce. On these occasions he was fond of bragging his recipe was the best in the country.

He Tied One On

Picture hats worn by Washington glamor girls at the British Embassy's garden party for 2000 guests were put to shame by the incredible headgear which Ambassador Ali of Pakistan wore for this Washington celebration of Queen Elizabeth's coronation.

It was a gold turban with four yards of stiff white muslin. One end jutted a foot or more in the air and the other end draped down over his shoulders. The ambassador told the bug-eyed fashion reporters he tied it himself.

'Dean' at 79

The new "Dean" of the House of Representatives, in point of age, is Rep. Robert Crosser, Cleveland, O., Democrat, who celebrated his 79th birthday on June 7. Representative Crosser was born in Holytown, Lanarkshire, Scotland, and was brought to America as a boy by his immigrant parents. He is best known as the author of railroad retirement-plan legislation. This is his 19th term in Congress.

Two other Democrats, Sam Rayburn of Texas and Carl Vinson of Georgia, have served 21 terms in Congress and so are senior to Representative Crosser in point of service, though they are younger men.

Representative Crosser became senior congressman on the recent death of Rep. Merlin Hull of Wisconsin, who was 82. Runner-up on seniority in the House is now Rep. Brent Spence of Kentucky, who is six months younger than Crosser.

'Dean' at 86

Seven years senior to Representative Crosser, on the Senate side of the Capitol, is the venerable but vigorous bachelor senator, Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island. At 86, Senator Green is probably the oldest man on active service in government.

Senator Green has to run for re-election next year. If he makes it and lives out his term he will become the oldest congressman in American history. The record was set by the late Sen. Justin Morrill of Vermont, who died in 1898 at age 88.

When Senator Green was asked if he was trying to beat this record, he ducked with the comment, "That is something I never discuss with anyone. As a matter of fact, I don't even discuss that with the Lord."

House-Made Economies

The economy record of the House of Representatives to date shows cuts in the Truman-prepared budget of a little under 18 per cent.

The House has now completed action on 12 appropriation bills for nine government departments, the independent offices, Army civil functions (rivers and harbors) and District of Columbia. Truman budget requests of $10.3 billion for these agencies were cut by $1.8 billion to $8.5 billion.

The whooping big Department of Defense budget is still to be acted on by the House. The Eisenhower administration has cut the Truman defense requests from $45.5 billion to $43.2 billion. Nobody knows what the House will do to this proposed $2.3 billion cut.

Warms Up to House Bills

Senate debate on the House-passed appropriation bills is just now beginning to warm up. As has been the case for the last several sessions, Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois has proved himself to be one of the most serious students of appropriation detail and one of the most sincere advocates of economy.

At one point in the State-Justice-Commerce appropriation bill debate, Senator Douglas dramatically pulled out a big magnifying glass to read small-type footnotes in proving that claimed economies of $55 million were complete phonies.

At another point the Illinois senator declared that the figures definition of the three kinds of lies: "Lies, damn lies and statistics."

Parting Sorrow

A beautiful friendship between the American Medical Association and the American Legion was shattered recently when the AMA House of Delegates passed a resolution against giving vetenars free treatment in Veteran's Administration hospitals for their non-service-connected disabilities.

A year ago both the Legion and AMA saw eye-to-eye on this question. Both organizations passed resolutions for a new investigation of non-service-connected disability cases. The Legion threw a big luncheon for AMA leaders to talk it over. But suddenly the doctors grew cold on the idea and never gave a return courtesy luncheon.

The Legion then went ahead with its own investigation. It found that more than a third of the non-service disability patients had been advised by their private doctors to take Veterans' Administration hospitalization, if they could not pay for treatment. AMA officials just laughed at this report, and passed their resolution against such treatment.

Legion officials now plan retaliation withdrawing their support from another AMA resolution which opposes free government medical care for dependents of members of the armed forces.

Administration Charges of Belated Rhee Demands Considered to Be Grave Mistake

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 12—Administration supporters are making a grave mistake in asserting that President Rhee of Korea has belatedly expressed his demands for a unification of Korea and his protest against an armistice that leaves Communist Chinese troops in North Korea.

The record shows that the Korean government consistently and constantly for the last 24 months has inveighed against any truce that would leave any Communist Chinese soldiers in North Korea. Again and again warning has been given in public utterances by the Korean president that a truce would not be approved if the Communist Chinese were not ousted from Korea.

It has not been generally known that the Korean government, although supplying the bulk of the troops, has never been permitted to be a party to the Panmunjom truce negotiations, while the North Korean government was permitted to negotiate directly.

Here is a chronology which gives a few of the many statements by President Rhee and his government concerning the very proposals for an armistice that are now about to be agreed to by the U.N.:

June 10, 1951 (just before first truce overtures began)—President Rhee, in an interview with the Associated Press, said: "We will do something in desperation if the United Nations should make any decision contrary to our national security."

June 12, 1951—President Rhee was reported by the Associated Press as warning against a "phony peace — any cease-fire order, negotiations, cessation or settlement that leave Korea divided by the artificial and meaningless geographical line of the 38th Parallel." Dr. Rhee said also: "The Yalu river is our objective."

June 26, 1951—An official statement by President Rhee demanded a voice in the truce talks and said: "Any proposal short of the complete reunification of the Korean peninsula will be unacceptable. This is our minimum requirement."

June 29, 1951—The Korean National Assembly unanimously adopted a resolution opposing a cease-fire until the following four conditions are met: "(1) Complete disarmament of Communist aggressors; (2) withdrawal of Chinese forces north of the Yalu and Tumen rivers; (3) complete political and territorial unification under the government of the Republic of Korea, and (4) assurance of a permanent security of the nation."

Jan. 20, 1952—Speech by President Rhee, released over television and radio to the American people: "We are very gravely concerned that the original goal of the United Nations to unify Korea will be lost sight of during the haggling at Panmunjom. We fear that too many concessions have already been made."

March 1, 1952—President Rhee, in a speech in Koera, said: "We want all our friends and our enemies alike to know that we must be permitted to utilize every possible means to survive as an independent, unified, democratic nation—even if we have to carry on the struggle alone."

May 16, 1952—President Rhee said in a speech: "How, when and by whom, may I ask, shall we expect through peaceful means to expel the Chinese from Korean soil? . . . If an army of 900,000 Chinese Communist aggressors is permitted to remain in North Korea, where none at all existed 18 months ago, we believe that fact will be interpreted on both sides of the iron curtain as a Communist success."

August 15, 1952 — President Rhee stated in a speech: "So long as the armed and aggressive enemy remains entrenched on our soil and the seven million anti-Communist Koreans in the north are still struggling and suffering, the goal proclaimed four years ago by both our people and the United Nations remains unachieved."

September 26, 1952 — President Rhee made a speech declaring that there can be "no rest until reunification has been achieved."

Coincident with all these speeches came communications to the American government outlining the same point of view.

The truce talks were broken off in October 1952 and negotiation of an agreement was not resumed until April 5, 1953. President Rhee demanded a voice in the negotiations and finally, on May 25, 1953, his "observer" boycotted the talks in protest at the effort to silence his government from making public protest. That's the chronology of how an ally who contributed most of the troops and most of the soldier casualties and who suffered the loss of many millions of its citizens was treated by the United Nations when the issue of life and death for this small country was at stake.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

In Tucson, Arizona, a short time ago, officials of a union called on a dairy and laid it down that the company must buy an "insurance" policy on its employes from a certain insurance company. The union agents were agents of record for the insurance firm. The dairyman demurred. He said he would like to consult his regular insurance monger and see whether he could beat the rate and terms offered by the union agents in their dual role. In other words, he wanted to shop around.

The unioneers said nope, he would have to buy their article at their price or take the consequences. The question whether his company had any responsibility in law or in the contract with the union to buy insurance for a group of workers who were, by the union's own admission, well paid for their services, was not even opened for discussion. The unioneers said the company must buy the insurance, and laid down all the business conditions of a deal with a private insurance company run for the profit of its owners.

The consequences for refusal to deal with them were not spelled out by the agents. But the employer was no dreamer in an ivory tower. In comparable cases the consequences had ranged from murder down to pollution of milk, the smearing of fresh paint jobs with lamp-black, the destruction of expensive plate glass windows with bearing-balls thrown from slingshots, and the introduction of chemicals into masses of clothing in dry-cleaning shops, resulting in arson.

The Teamsters' Union is not the guiltiest of criminal conduct in all the foul rackets of the American Federation of Labor but it is up there in a photo-finish with the operating engineers, the glaziers, the retail clerks, the electrical workers, the common laborers and the studio and theatre crafts of the movies. Dave Beck, the new president of the teamsters, a swollen poseur of the ostentatious but counterfeit "new unionism," has muscled his way into a partnership with quavering captains of industry, politics and even higher education. Beck has tried with some regional success to disown the rascalities which have been standard practice in the teameo unions for many years. To the embarrassment of Beck's pretense of reform within this racket, however, there have been sluggings in the old exuberant way in Kansas City, shootings in Georgia and routine atrocities on the New York waterfront.

The insurance racket is a major extension, though not a new one, of the powers and ramifications of the union octopus. Actually, no union has any right to force any insurance on its members or to force any employer to buy insurance for them. If the members, or subjects, are forced to buy it, some officials of the union stands to gain through a commission on the premiums. This means that the subjects may be thrown out of the union and fired from their jobs for failing to pay tribute to a prince of privilege.

There was a notorious case of this kind in the Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders' Union, of Kansas City, Kans., during the war. In that great crisis of Democracy, Henry Kaiser hoarded employes in his west coast yards, at our expense, of course, and the union nabobs got a closed shop embracing all the employes then on hire or yet to be hired by means of a contract freely given by this psalm-singing old gas-bag, when he had not more than 2,000 or 3,000 on his payrolls.

To Kaiser, it made no moral difference that the ensuing thousands of unseen, faceless men and women, not yet lured from the desert, the mountains and the sweeping prairies of the west, were to have no voice in the selection of their bargaining agent. For an honest fact, most of them were ignorant persons with no experience in such matters. It made no difference to them that they had to join this union on Kaiser's decision. They had no mental capacity to see that they were denied the right to bargain collectively "through agents of their own choice."

It was beyond their grasp that in submitting to Kaiser's decision they were obliging themselves to pay an enormous collective tribute to a parasite whose father was president of the union. The history of this union's insurance dealings whereby the members were forced to keep their premiums paid for the benefit of the president's son was a spectacle of corruption. Yet, although it was thoroughly exposed in minute particulars at the height of the war, Kaiser airily surmounted the whole business, and the Roosevelt apparatus, busily contriving a brave new world for Poland, and the Baltic and the Balkan states, ignored it successfully.

After the war, Jimmy, the eaglet of the Roosevelt dynasty, whose illustrious mother had taken over his insurance rackets for a spell, appeared in a number of California union insurance contracts. He was the agent of record. This means that he was cut in for commissions on premiums but for amounts which we may never know. The trail is cooling, and the posse is losing wind, enthusiasm and numbers as the years rush by. Jimmy's union insurance practice passed its peak

New problems flood in upon us. Will the Communists observe well the terms of the truce, or will they resort to their common practice and snarl the truce administration in hopeless deadlock and confusion?

A truce is not a peace. Will this one lead to an honorable political settlement in Korea and perhaps the whole Far East, or will it leave two armed camps with guns poised to renew the battle?

Is this truce a sign of real easing of world tensions, or will the Reds take advantage of this release from struggle to plunge into new adventures of aggression elsewhere?

The free world is joyful that the guns are falling silent in one troubled land. But it cannot relax its vigilance until the signs of hope are more real.

Sea serpents always frighten us and the reassurance of the know-it-alls that there are no such creatures helps not one whit. Perhaps it is because we like being afraid of sea-serpents, just as we enjoy being slightly frightened when we read a mystery story. At any rate the reports from off San Clemente Island in California of a nice-sized sea-serpent, about as big as a submarine, with a twelve foot neck, stimulated our imagination and helped us to understand why the men of Spain were so reluctant to go sailing off with Columbus.

We recently learned of the election of a new president of the International Union of Doll and Toy Workers. We were wondering how long Santa Claus would get away with that open shop policy of his.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

FORSAKEN KOREA

The Korean people have in their long history been the involuntary pawns in struggles for power between China and Japan, and among China, Japan and Russia.

As early as 1592, Korea was invaded by the Japanese, Hideyoshi, who laid the peninsula waste. The Chinese came to the aid of the Koreans and defeated Hideyoshi. Korea found it impossible to get rid of the Chinese, who established a loose suzerainty over that little country, which became a cause for conflict between China and Japan, and with the Russians, who had expanded their empire in Siberia until they had reached the Pacific. The Russians hoped to conquer either Manchuria or Korea to get a warm water port.

Out of this prolonged struggle came the Sino-Japanese War of 1894, which, to the surprise of Europe, Japan won. By the Treaty of Shimonoseki, Japan and China recognized the full independence of Korea, which really meant that China was put out of Korea. Russia, France, and Germany combined to keep the gains of war from Japan, which had the effect of focussing Japan's policy upon driving Russian influence permanently out of Korea and Manchuria.

By the secret Li-Lobanoff Treaty, signed in 1896 between Russia and China, each party agreed to aid the other in the event that Japan attacked Russian Far Eastern territory, or China, or Korea. The Japanese did not know the nature of the Li-Lobanoff Treaty until 1922; however, they witnessed the effects of some such agreement, as early as 1896, in the establishment of the Chinese Eastern Railway and the Russo-Chinese Bank, which eventually became the Russo-Asiatic Bank. The climax of these deals was the leasing of the cities of Port Arthur and Dairen in Manchuria to Russia.

In a word, Japan and China both lost the fruits of the war to Russia.

Great Britain was impressed by the danger of a Russian conquest of Manchuria and Korea by attrition, bribery and the already apparent breakdown of the Manchu dynasty in China. Therefore, Great Britain supported Japan and in 1902 the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was signed.

The United States had, as early as 1882, negotiated a treaty with Korea, but it was done through China, which was then in control of Korea's foreign relations. This treaty has been the cause of considerable discussion, for while it does not mention a recognition of Korean independence, the Koreans believed that that was its intention.

In 1904, the Russo-Japanese War occurred, in which the Russians were roundly trounced. The Japanese occupied Seoul and forced the Korean government to its will. By the Treaty of Portsmouth, Japan's preponderant interest in Korea was recognized by Russia and eventually by all powers, including China and the United States. The fact that Japan assigned her greatest statesman, Prince Ito, to be resident-general in Korea established the evidence that annexation would follow shortly, which it did in 1910. The name of the country was changed to Chosen.

The Japanese developed Chosen industrially, particularly producing power on the Yalu River which could serve them both in Chosen and Manchuria.

During the entire period of Japanese occupation, insurrectionist groups, based on Peking and Shanghai, labored for a liberated Korea. After 1920, Soviet Russia organized a Korean Communist Party and applied its usual methods of propaganda, infiltration, and agitation among peasants and workers. This must be said: these insurrectionist movements received no aid, from 1910 to 1950, from the United States; since 1950, Soviet Russia gave them valuable support.

After the surrender of Japan in 1945, Korea became a trusteeship of the United Nations. A line had been drawn at the 38th Parallel to arrange for the management of prisoners of war between the United States and Soviet Russia. That became a line of demarcation between North and South Korea, between Russian and American influences, between the Republic of Korea and the Communist government of Korea.

That resulted in the Korean War in which China, Russia, the United States and the United Nations intervened. By the Truce Settlement, Soviet Russia, which did no fighting and lost not a man, won the war. Korea has nothing better to look forward to than to be a satellite of Soviet Russia in due course.

This is a tale of nearly four unhappy centuries of a people who never troubled anybody.

That Body of Yours

REMOVING INFECTION

For many years the standing jest among our dentists and physicians was that the patient had had all his teeth removed but still had his rheumatism, or the patient had his tonsils removed but had developed heart disease.

Fortunately, these two sayings have gone by the board as more and more evidence is being presented by dentists and physicians of the disappearance of rheumatism and arthritis a few weeks or months, at least, after removal of infected teeth.

In the Journal of the Iowa Medical Society, Drs. L. E. January and E. O. Theilen report that in analyzing 196 cases of subacute bacterial endocarditis (inflammation of lining of the heart), formerly always fatal, now by the use of penicillin the recovery rate has risen from 0 to 74 per cent.

In this analysis, it was found that the majority of patients had underlying heart disease involving damage to heart valves resulting from rheumatic fever or from a defect at birth. Therefore, to prevent progressive irreversible heart damage, early diagnosis must be made and vigorous treatment started as soon as possible.

"Any patient with an organic heart abnormality who has a rise in temperature lasting a week should be thoroughly investigated for evidence of bacterial endocarditis. Penicillin, because of its rapid action in killing harmful organisms which cause endocarditis is considered to be the antibiotic of choice in treatment of subacute bacterial endocarditis."

Treatment should be continued for five to eight weeks and the convalescent period followed closely for evidence of recurrence or return of the symptoms.

After the patient has improved so that the disease is under control, a thorough search should be made for foci of infection. Very commonly the teeth are the offenders. Removal of the poison from the blood is not enough. The infected teeth must be removed if cure is to be obtained. Unless the infected teeth are removed, a recurrence of the heart infection is likely to occur because, as related of all infections, "the mill has closed down but there are a lot of goods left on the shelves that must be sold or removed."

I believe this testimony regarding the need of the removal of focal infection—teeth, gums, tonsils—to prevent return of the formerly fatal disease, endocarditis, should be taken at full value by our dentists, physicians and surgeons.

"Now Mind Your Table Manners"

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington (NEA)—The White House has now been forced to slap a tight secrecy classification on all the favorite recipes of President and Mrs. Eisenhower. Giving them out to food editors and other curious cooks proved to be too much of a chore for the White House staff.

The President rather fancies himself as a pretty good cook in an amateur sort of way. Mrs. Eisenhower, although not too interested in cooking, does have a couple of favorite dishes which she likes to whip up.

The new secrecy order on the First Family's favorite concoctions came to light when the National Press Club asked the President to submit a recipe for his favorite barbecue sauce. The club is running a contest to select a prize sauce for its annual barbecue and rodeo.

The word leaked out that the President was pretty disappointed at not being able to enter his barbecue formula in competition against those from his fellow (Democrat) Texans, Secretary of Health, etc., Oveta Culp Hobby, House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn and Associate Justice Tom Clark of the Supreme Court. But the new ban against recipe publicity forced Cook Eisenhower out of the running.

When Ike was in Denver last summer, organizing his campaign, the staff had numerous barbecues at which the head man insisted on preparing his own sauce. On these occasions he was fond of bragging his recipe was the best in the country.

He Tied One On

Picture hats worn by Washington glamor girls at the British Embassy's garden party for 2000 guests were put to shame by the incredible headgear which Ambassador Ali of Pakistan wore for this Washington celebration of Queen Elizabeth's coronation.

It was a gold turban with four yards of stiff white muslin. One end jutted a foot or more in the air and the other end draped down over his shoulders. The ambassador told the bug-eyed fashion reporters he tied it himself.

'Dean' at 79

The new "Dean" of the House of Representatives, in point of age, is Rep. Robert Crosser, Cleveland, O., Democrat, who celebrated his 79th birthday on June 7. Representative Crosser was born in Holytown, Lanarkshire, Scotland, and was brought to America as a boy by his immigrant parents. He is best known as the author of railroad retirement-plan legislation. This is his 19th term in Congress.

Two other Democrats, Sam Rayburn of Texas and Carl Vinson of Georgia, have served 21 terms in Congress and so are senior to Representative Crosser in point of service, though they are younger men.

Representative Crosser became senior congressman on the recent death of Rep. Merlin Hull of Wisconsin, who was 82. Runner-up on seniority in the House is now Rep. Brent Spence of Kentucky, who is six months younger than Crosser.

'Dean' at 86

Seven years senior to Representative Crosser, on the Senate side of the Capitol, is the venerable but vigorous bachelor senator, Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island. At 86, Senator Green is probably the oldest man on active service in government.

Senator Green has to run for re-election next year. If he makes it and lives out his term he will become the oldest congressman in American history. The record was set by the late Sen. Justin Morrill of Vermont, who died in 1898 at age 88.

When Senator Green was asked if he was trying to beat this record, he ducked with the comment, "That is something I never discuss with anyone. As a matter of fact, I don't even discuss that with the Lord."

House-Made Economies

The economy record of the House of Representatives to date shows cuts in the Truman-prepared budget of a little under 18 per cent.

The House has now completed action on 12 appropriation bills for nine government departments, the independent offices, Army civil functions (rivers and harbors) and District of Columbia. Truman budget requests of $10.3 billion for these agencies were cut by $1.8 billion to $8.5 billion.

The whooping big Department of Defense budget is still to be acted on by the House. The Eisenhower administration has cut the Truman defense requests from $45.5 billion to $43.2 billion. Nobody knows what the House will do to this proposed $2.3 billion cut.

Warms Up to House Bills

Senate debate on the House-passed appropriation bills is just now beginning to warm up. As has been the case for the last several sessions, Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois has proved himself to be one of the most serious students of appropriation detail and one of the most sincere advocates of economy.

At one point in the State-Justice-Commerce appropriation bill debate, Senator Douglas dramatically pulled out a big magnifying glass to read small-type footnotes in proving that claimed economies of $55 million were complete phonies.

At another point the Illinois senator declared that the figures definition of the three kinds of lies: "Lies, damn lies and statistics."

Parting Sorrow

A beautiful friendship between the American Medical Association and the American Legion was shattered recently when the AMA House of Delegates passed a resolution against giving vetenars free treatment in Veteran's Administration hospitals for their non-service-connected disabilities.

A year ago both the Legion and AMA saw eye-to-eye on this question. Both organizations passed resolutions for a new investigation of non-service-connected disability cases. The Legion threw a big luncheon for AMA leaders to talk it over. But suddenly the doctors grew cold on the idea and never gave a return courtesy luncheon.

The Legion then went ahead with its own investigation. It found that more than a third of the non-service disability patients had been advised by their private doctors to take Veterans' Administration hospitalization, if they could not pay for treatment. AMA officials just laughed at this report, and passed their resolution against such treatment.

Legion officials now plan retaliation withdrawing their support from another AMA resolution which opposes free government medical care for dependents of members of the armed forces.

Administration Charges of Belated Rhee Demands Considered to Be Grave Mistake

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 12—Administration supporters are making a grave mistake in asserting that President Rhee of Korea has belatedly expressed his demands for a unification of Korea and his protest against an armistice that leaves Communist Chinese troops in North Korea.

The record shows that the Korean government consistently and constantly for the last 24 months has inveighed against any truce that would leave any Communist Chinese soldiers in North Korea. Again and again warning has been given in public utterances by the Korean president that a truce would not be approved if the Communist Chinese were not ousted from Korea.

It has not been generally known that the Korean government, although supplying the bulk of the troops, has never been permitted to be a party to the Panmunjom truce negotiations, while the North Korean government was permitted to negotiate directly.

Here is a chronology which gives a few of the many statements by President Rhee and his government concerning the very proposals for an armistice that are now about to be agreed to by the U.N.:

June 10, 1951 (just before first truce overtures began)—President Rhee, in an interview with the Associated Press, said: "We will do something in desperation if the United Nations should make any decision contrary to our national security."

June 12, 1951—President Rhee was reported by the Associated Press as warning against a "phony peace — any cease-fire order, negotiations, cessation or settlement that leave Korea divided by the artificial and meaningless geographical line of the 38th Parallel." Dr. Rhee said also: "The Yalu river is our objective."

June 26, 1951—An official statement by President Rhee demanded a voice in the truce talks and said: "Any proposal short of the complete reunification of the Korean peninsula will be unacceptable. This is our minimum requirement."

June 29, 1951—The Korean National Assembly unanimously adopted a resolution opposing a cease-fire until the following four conditions are met: "(1) Complete disarmament of Communist aggressors; (2) withdrawal of Chinese forces north of the Yalu and Tumen rivers; (3) complete political and territorial unification under the government of the Republic of Korea, and (4) assurance of a permanent security of the nation."

Jan. 20, 1952—Speech by President Rhee, released over television and radio to the American people: "We are very gravely concerned that the original goal of the United Nations to unify Korea will be lost sight of during the haggling at Panmunjom. We fear that too many concessions have already been made."

March 1, 1952—President Rhee, in a speech in Koera, said: "We want all our friends and our enemies alike to know that we must be permitted to utilize every possible means to survive as an independent, unified, democratic nation—even if we have to carry on the struggle alone."

May 16, 1952—President Rhee said in a speech: "How, when and by whom, may I ask, shall we expect through peaceful means to expel the Chinese from Korean soil? . . . If an army of 900,000 Chinese Communist aggressors is permitted to remain in North Korea, where none at all existed 18 months ago, we believe that fact will be interpreted on both sides of the iron curtain as a Communist success."

August 15, 1952 — President Rhee stated in a speech: "So long as the armed and aggressive enemy remains entrenched on our soil and the seven million anti-Communist Koreans in the north are still struggling and suffering, the goal proclaimed four years ago by both our people and the United Nations remains unachieved."

September 26, 1952 — President Rhee made a speech declaring that there can be "no rest until reunification has been achieved."

Coincident with all these speeches came communications to the American government outlining the same point of view.

The truce talks were broken off in October 1952 and negotiation of an agreement was not resumed until April 5, 1953. President Rhee demanded a voice in the negotiations and finally, on May 25, 1953, his "observer" boycotted the talks in protest at the effort to silence his government from making public protest. That's the chronology of how an ally who contributed most of the troops and most of the soldier casualties and who suffered the loss of many millions of its citizens was treated by the United Nations when the issue of life and death for this small country was at stake.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

In Tucson, Arizona, a short time ago, officials of a union called on a dairy and laid it down that the company must buy an "insurance" policy on its employes from a certain insurance company. The union agents were agents of record for the insurance firm. The dairyman demurred. He said he would like to consult his regular insurance monger and see whether he could beat the rate and terms offered by the union agents in their dual role. In other words, he wanted to shop around.

The unioneers said nope, he would have to buy their article at their price or take the consequences. The question whether his company had any responsibility in law or in the contract with the union to buy insurance for a group of workers who were, by the union's own admission, well paid for their services, was not even opened for discussion. The unioneers said the company must buy the insurance, and laid down all the business conditions of a deal with a private insurance company run for the profit of its owners.

The consequences for refusal to deal with them were not spelled out by the agents. But the employer was no dreamer in an ivory tower. In comparable cases the consequences had ranged from murder down to pollution of milk, the smearing of fresh paint jobs with lamp-black, the destruction of expensive plate glass windows with bearing-balls thrown from slingshots, and the introduction of chemicals into masses of clothing in dry-cleaning shops, resulting in arson.

The Teamsters' Union is not the guiltiest of criminal conduct in all the foul rackets of the American Federation of Labor, but it is up there in a photo-finish with the operating engineers, the glaziers, the retail clerks, the electrical workers, the common laborers and the studio and theatre crafts of the movies. Dave Beck, the new president of the teamsters, a swollen poseur of the ostentatious but counterfeit "new unionism," has muscled his way into a partnership with quavering captains of industry, politics and even higher education. Beck has tried with some regional success to disown the rascalities which have been standard practice in the teameo unions for many years. To the embarrassment of Beck's pretense of reform within this racket, however, there have been sluggings in the old exuberant way in Kansas City, shootings in Georgia and routine atrocities on the New York waterfront.

The insurance racket is a major extension, though not a new one, of the powers and ramifications of the union octopus. Actually, no union has any right to force any insurance on its members or to force any employer to buy insurance for them. If the members, or subjects, are forced to buy it, some officials of the union stands to gain through a commission on the premiums. This means that the subjects may be thrown out of the union and fired from their jobs for failing to pay tribute to a prince of privilege.

There was a notorious case of this kind in the Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders' Union, of Kansas City, Kans., during the war. In that great crisis of Democracy, Henry Kaiser hoarded employes in his west coast yards, at our expense, of course, and the union nabobs got a closed shop embracing all the employes then on hire or yet to be hired by means of a contract freely given by this psalm-singing old gas-bag, when he had not more than 2,000 or 3,000 on his payrolls.

To Kaiser, it made no moral difference that the ensuing thousands of unseen, faceless men and women, not yet lured from the desert, the mountains and the sweeping prairies of the west, were to have no voice in the selection of their bargaining agent. For an honest fact, most of them were ignorant persons with no experience in such matters. It made no difference to them that they had to join this union on Kaiser's decision. They had no mental capacity to see that they were denied the right to bargain collectively "through agents of their own choice."

It was beyond their grasp that in submitting to Kaiser's decision they were obliging themselves to pay an enormous collective tribute to a parasite whose father was president of the union. The history of this union's insurance dealings whereby the members were forced to keep their premiums paid for the benefit of the president's son was a spectacle of corruption. Yet, although it was thoroughly exposed in minute particulars at the height of the war, Kaiser airily surmounted the whole business, and the Roosevelt apparatus, busily contriving a brave new world for Poland, and the Baltic and the Balkan states, ignored it successfully.

After the war, Jimmy, the eaglet of the Roosevelt dynasty, whose illustrious mother had taken over his insurance rackets for a spell, appeared in a number of California union insurance contracts. He was the agent of record. This means that he was cut in for commissions on premiums but for amounts which we may never know. The trail is cooling, and the posse is losing wind, enthusiasm and numbers as the years rush by. Jimmy's union insurance practice passed its peak

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., June 11—The future of the Free Nations of the world depends upon four foundation stones: (1) We Parents; (2) Our Churches; (3) Our Schools and Colleges; and (4) Our Newspapers. My appeal today is for greater support of all newspapers of the Free World. (I would like to include a fifth group—namely, the scientists and inventors, but they now appear to devote their time largely to the destruction of this globe.)

Publishers and Writers

In view of the above, the Babsons have distributed their surplus savings for awakening the churches, through the great open-church movement; speeding college education, through Babson Institute, Webber College and Utopia College, and now dedicating this world's greatest revolving globe to the newspapers of the Free World. I feel that newspaper publishers have not been appreciated when they are entitled to far greater respect and consideration. They certainly are more important to the future of America than are the bankers, the manufacturers, and the shopkeepers. Newspapers not only have the opportunity of guiding their nation's leaders, but they are a great factor in electing the right leaders. The advertising columns of these papers determine the employment conditions of the country; while the editorial writers determine largely what the preachers and teachers say.

When I mention newspapers I include everyone connected with them, including the woodsmen who cut the trees; the mill workers who turn the logs into pulp, and make the paper and ink; the publishers and their reporters, writers and printers; and, in fact, all employes, including the boys and girls who deliver the papers. Yes, and I must not forget the advertisers, without whom our whole industrial system might collapse. To all these I am dedicating this—"The World's Largest Globe."

The Great Globe Described

This "Great Revolving Globe" is being located on the 300-acre campus of the Babson Institute at Wellesley, Mass. It is 30 feet in diameter and weighs with the shafts 37 tons. The countries and cities are located on a scale of 24 miles to the inch, and the Globe will designate the home of the newspapers of 400 cities from which 95% of the population of the United States, Canada, Latin America, Great Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, and the other free nations are reading. Copies of these and others, including The Kingston Daily Freeman, are being deposited in a concrete vault under the cornerstone, upon which will be bolted a bronze plaque with the following inscription:

"This plaque is dedicated to the Newspaper Publishers of the Globe and all persons in their employ. May their work be appreciated, their freedom be protected and their great responsibilities be realized. Only they can bring the nations of this Globe into One United World.

ROGER W. BABSON"

Dedication Exercises

The dedication was on Memorial Day. President Edward B. Hinckley of Babson Institute introduced U. S. Senator Saltonstall and Speaker of the House Martin, who made the leading addresses. They were followed by a welcome from Herbert R. Gleason, chairman of the Wellesley Board of Selectmen, and by Major General George A. Horkan, one of the Institute's most distinguished graduates. The ground was broken by Roger Babson Webber, my grandson. The chairman of the committee selecting and gathering the newspapers is Lewis W. Mustard, III.

I announced that surrounding the Globe will be seats for over a hundred persons and that a monthly vesper service will be held with the Globe as a background for the minister. This is so that every student will remember all the different nations and races of the Globe. I want them to realize that the entire world is their responsibility and that America is safe only as the entire Globe is safe. I am depending on my newspaper friends to get other colleges to instill their students with this same Global point of view.

Legion Requests Display of Flag

Display of Old Glory on Flag Day, June 14, is urged by Commander John A. Weber of Kingston Post, 150, American Legion.

Weber stressed that honoring the Flag is one of the principal objects of the American Legion, whose membership is made up of veterans of world wars one and two, and the Korean war.

Booklets relative to the Flag and its use are available, the commander said, at the Legion building on West O'Reilly street. He said they would be mailed to anyone making a phone request.

Distribution of the booklets is part of the American Legion's Americanization program.

June 19 is the day Commander Weber's term of office in the Legion terminates, and he hopes to be able to say that Flag Day was one of the most successful events during his tenure.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., June 11—The future of the Free Nations of the world depends upon four foundation stones: (1) We Parents; (2) Our Churches; (3) Our Schools and Colleges; and (4) Our Newspapers. My appeal today is for greater support of all newspapers of the Free World. (I would like to include a fifth group—namely, the scientists and inventors, but they now appear to devote their time largely to the destruction of this globe.)

Publishers and Writers

In view of the above, the Babsons have distributed their surplus savings for awakening the churches, through the great open-church movement; speeding college education, through Babson Institute, Webber College and Utopia College, and now dedicating this world's greatest revolving globe to the newspapers of the Free World. I feel that newspaper publishers have not been appreciated when they are entitled to far greater respect and consideration. They certainly are more important to the future of America than are the bankers, the manufacturers, and the shopkeepers. Newspapers not only have the opportunity of guiding their nation's leaders, but they are a great factor in electing the right leaders. The advertising columns of these papers determine the employment conditions of the country; while the editorial writers determine largely what the preachers and teachers say.

When I mention newspapers I include everyone connected with them, including the woodsmen who cut the trees; the mill workers who turn the logs into pulp, and make the paper and ink; the publishers and their reporters, writers and printers; and, in fact, all employes, including the boys and girls who deliver the papers. Yes, and I must not forget the advertisers, without whom our whole industrial system might collapse. To all these I am dedicating this—"The World's Largest Globe."

The Great Globe Described

This "Great Revolving Globe" is being located on the 300-acre campus of the Babson Institute at Wellesley, Mass. It is 30 feet in diameter and weighs with the shafts 37 tons. The countries and cities are located on a scale of 24 miles to the inch, and the Globe will designate the home of the newspapers of 400 cities from which 95% of the population of the United States, Canada, Latin America, Great Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, and the other free nations are reading. Copies of these and others, including The Kingston Daily Freeman, are being deposited in a concrete vault under the cornerstone, upon which will be bolted a bronze plaque with the following inscription:

"This plaque is dedicated to the Newspaper Publishers of the Globe and all persons in their employ. May their work be appreciated, their freedom be protected and their great responsibilities be realized. Only they can bring the nations of this Globe into One United World.

ROGER W. BABSON"

Dedication Exercises

The dedication was on Memorial Day. President Edward B. Hinckley of Babson Institute introduced U. S. Senator Saltonstall and Speaker of the House Martin, who made the leading addresses. They were followed by a welcome from Herbert R. Gleason, chairman of the Wellesley Board of Selectmen, and by Major General George A. Horkan, one of the Institute's most distinguished graduates. The ground was broken by Roger Babson Webber, my grandson. The chairman of the committee selecting and gathering the newspapers is Lewis W. Mustard, III.

I announced that surrounding the Globe will be seats for over a hundred persons and that a monthly vesper service will be held with the Globe as a background for the minister. This is so that every student will remember all the different nations and races of the Globe. I want them to realize that the entire world is their responsibility and that America is safe only as the entire Globe is safe. I am depending on my newspaper friends to get other colleges to instill their students with this same Global point of view.

Legion Requests Display of Flag

Display of Old Glory on Flag Day, June 14, is urged by Commander John A. Weber of Kingston Post, 150, American Legion.

Weber stressed that honoring the Flag is one of the principal objects of the American Legion, whose membership is made up of veterans of world wars one and two, and the Korean war.

Booklets relative to the Flag and its use are available, the commander said, at the Legion building on West O'Reilly street. He said they would be mailed to anyone making a phone request.

Distribution of the booklets is part of the American Legion's Americanization program.

June 19 is the day Commander Weber's term of office in the Legion terminates, and he hopes to be able to say that Flag Day was one of the most successful events during his tenure.

Father's Day Originated by Mother in 1910

Father's Day was not the brainchild of a group of disgruntled daddies who resented all the attention mama got on Mother's Day. According to the National Father's Day Committee, the day honoring dads was launched June 19, 1910, three years before the first official Mother's Day.

A mother created Father's Day. Mrs. Bruce Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., suggested the idea to honor her father, William Smart, a Civil War veteran who reared his six motherless children on a farm located in eastern Washington.

At first Father's Day was observed only in Spokane. President Calvin Coolidge recommended national observance of it in 1924.

Men Behind Ike —More Specials

(It takes writers, lawyers and military experts to keep the White House staff running in these days of specialists for specialized fields. In this concluding article of four on the men behind Ike, AP Newsfeature Writer Sigrid Arne tells how each fits into the picture of a smoothly-integrated operation—just the sort of organization you might expect from the man who directed SHAEF).

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Washington, June 12 (AP) — Writer Emmet J. Hughes has the most illustrious editor in the country. The man who blue-pencils his work is President Eisenhower.

"He's an excellent editor," Hughes tells you as he strokes his pipe. "He knows just what he wants to say, and he knows the exact words to say it."

In a quiet office overlooking the White House front lawn, Hughes turns out the President's speeches, messages to Congress, proclamations. Other Presidents have had two or three writers and on occasion a whole team. Hughes is the youngest man on Eisenhower's White House staff—he's 32—and the only writer.

Speech Is Example

He works from 8 to 6 unless there's a special job on hand. Then he may work 'round the clock or a weekend. The foreign policy speech which the President made to editors is an example.

"I've forgotten how many conferences we had on that," says Hughes. "It was confidential until released. So I either carried my draft home for work, or it was locked up.

"Some evenings the President had it. He works over my drafts in the evenings. I see him the next morning if it's necessary. I get my ideas from him first, of course. Top policy ideas are talked over by the cabinet and in the 8:30 a. m. White House staff meeting. For fine points of fact, I phone the departments. Congressional leaders are asked for advice, particularly on politics."

Has to Reply

Hughes has to reply to dozens of clubs and cities or towns asking special messages from the President to mark some anniversary or special project. He either writes the messages (which the President OKs) or he declines gracefully.

He has had concentrated assignments in the foreign affairs he must now write about. In 1942-'46 he was with military intelligence in Madrid. Out of that experience he wrote two successful books, "The Church and the Libera Society," which was a Catholic Book-of-the-Month Club selection, and "Report From Madrid."

In 1946 he went to Rome for the magazines Life and Time. In 1948 he shifted to Berlin and returned in 1949 to the New York offices.

Jackson Is Another

Another Time-Life graduate on the Eisenhower staff is tall, rangy C. D. Jackson, the link between the President and all the phases of the cold war.

"Sometimes I think I should wear long whiskers and look the part," chuckles Jackson, "but the work is less romantic than it seems. My office tries to pull together all the propaganda which can hold our friends or confuse our enemies.

"There is practically nothing which can be told about the job except that I sit in with the cabinet and with the National Security Council. I see the President when it is necessary—and I make that 8:30 meeting of the White House staff."

He gained wide experience in World War 2 in the type of work he now heads. He did wartime propaganda work in Italy, Turkey, France and England also.

Jackson is 51 and married. He graduated from Princeton in 1924 and after some years of running his familys importing business joined Time as assistant to the President.

Shanley Handles Tour

The man who has to be certain that all President Eisenhower's moves tie in with the law of the land is a Newark, N. J., lawyer—Bernard M. Shanley. He's 49, with thick gray hair and a constant smile.

Shanley is responsible for finding one spot in which the President can cut down on some of the routine chores of his office. The rafts of papers he has to take in for Eisenhower's signature included many reassignments of naval officers. Eisenhower wondered out loud whether he had to sign them. Shanley dug back through law books to find that the President could issue an order transferring the signing to the chief of naval operations. Shanley is hunting other such possibilities.

President Truman used to say that he signed his name 600 times a day. President Eisenhower is doing it about 200 times a day—and that doesn't include autographs. It all takes time that Eisenhower and his staff feel should be given to serious planning.

Maxwell Rabb, 41, is a Boston lawyer who takes some of the load off the shoulders of Sherman Adams, assistant to the President. Rabb arrives at the White House at 7:30 a. m., to dig out facts which Adams needs for the briefing an hour later.

President Eisenhower's working White House staff is rounded out by the usual four military aides. Three take care of the day-to-day work between the President and the services: Lt. Col. Robert L. Schultz (army), Cmdr. Edward L. Beach (navy) and Maj. William G. Draper (air force). Draper is pilot of the President's personal plane, the "Columbine."

Col. Paul T. Carroll (army) is the link between the White House and the Pentagon on defense policy.

A fifth military officer on the staff—Maj. Gen. Howard Snyder—is the President's physician. Snyder is his own best advertisement. At 72 he is rated by some stenographers as the handsomest man on the staff.

He calls the President an ideal patient:

"He even watches his weight carefully. When he reaches 180 he automatically cuts his eating. I remember the exact hour he stopped smoking. It was at 3 p. m. March 21, 1949. He had an upset stomach. I had convinced him that he had to give up cigarettes for a while, and then I added 'as long as you have to give them up temporarily, why don't you make it permanent?'"

"He had just reached for a cigarette. He stopped midway and put it back. That was his last smoke to date."

As Pegler Sees It

as the incense rising from his father's name deepened into the stench of Yalta.

Clearly, when an agent of a union gives an employer an express or implied command to buy insurance and his help for the agent's own financial profit with the express or implied alternative of a strike, there is restraint of trade. Other insurance companies are automatically blocked out of the deal. These others have better policies and terms to offer. Assuming that the workers are entitled to insurance either at their own or their employers' expense, they should have a right to the best proposition that the market affords. This situation has the look of a conspiracy between a union and an insurance company availing itself of the union's coercive power. The courts have graciously held that a union commits an offense wherever the union injures the business of one company in a conspiracy redounding to the benefit of another company.

Figures in Senatorial Dispute

Sen. Herbert Lehman (D-Lib-N.Y.) talks in his office in Washington, D. C., after a dispute on the Senate floor with Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.). McCarthy accused Lehman of "a rather gross abuse" of the Senate's free mailing privileges. Lehman shouted back that McCarthy was trying to "intimidate" him.

McCarthy, Lehman Stand on Opinion Privilege Abused

Washington, June 12 (AP)—Sens. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) and Lehman (D.-Lib.-N.Y.Y.), accused each other of "smear" tactics, stood today on their contentions that each has abused the Senate's free mailing privilege.

McCarthy touched off the dispute in a Senate speech yesterday. He attributed to Lehman "a rather gross abuse" of the frankling privilege by saying Lehman mailed or tried to mail at the taxpayers' expense 100,000 pieces of literature captioned "Creeping McCarthyism."

Lehman called that a "tissue of fabrications" and fired back a statement that "only last year the postoffice department was trying to collect from Sen. McCarthy a sum of money for mailing, under his franking privilege, a considerable number of commercial advertisements for a book he wrote."

Last October the postoffice said it was trying to figure how much to charge McCarthy for mail it said he sent free and should have paid for. No change in this status has been reported since the Republicans took office in January.

Would Not Be as High

In his attack on Lehman, McCarthy argued the postoffice department deficit would not be as high as it is if members of Congress were "a bit more careful about abusing the privilege of the frank."

McCarthy, first inviting Lehman's attention to what he was about to say, told the Senate that "Mr. Chambers" in the Senate mailing room had blocked the free mailing of 100,000 pieces of anti-McCarthy literature on grounds it could not qualify as official business.

Lehman challenged that, first in the Senate and later in a prepared statement. The New Yorker said "the franking privilege never was in question." What really was involved, he said, was a question of who should do the work of stuffing into 18,000 franked envelopes copies of a speech he had made in New York entitled "Creeping McCarthyism."

John T. Chambers, the "Mr. Chambers" mentioned by McCarthy, has charge of the folding room. He said he has nothing to do with determining what mail is frankable, and said he had refused only to handle the insertion of the material in envelopes.

McCarthy told the Senate: "I don't give a tinker's dam how many smears Lehman sends out about McCarthy. But I insist he pay for them out of his own money."

Said Lehman in his statement: "Sen. McCarthy is up to his old tricks—smear, innuendo and multiple untruths."

About 25 per cent of petroleum is available on the average as gasoline without using the "cracking" process.

Why We Say--

... Two words

The husband is actually the bond of the house, according to the derivation of this word. Husband comes from the Anglo-Saxon "Hus bond" which means house bond (bond meant serf or slave originally).

Urges Use of Service

Greater use of the Date Clearing Service offered by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce was urged today by Executive Secretary Albert Kurdt. "Numerous complaints have been received about conflicting dates," Kurdt said, "and one way to eliminate some of the conflicts would be for more organizations to register dates at the chamber office as far in advance as possible. It would be of mutual benefit to do so." The Chamber of Commerce offers the facilities of their office as a clearing house for important dates and all organizations are invited to register dates by calling Kingston 5100. Organizations can register dates set for any larger and more important functions. Kurdt reported that a few organizations call up nearly a year in advance to register dates and many call the office to find out which dates during a specified period have events scheduled.

Finch Is Cleared Of Perjury Charge

Hudson, June 12 (AP)—A former Hudson patrolman has been cleared of charges that he lied in testifying about Hudson's once-thriving Red light district.

Arthur Finch, 56, was acquitted yesterday by a State Supreme Court Jury after it deliberated 2 hours and 33 minutes.

Finch was tried on a two-count perjury indictment returned by the extraordinary grand jury probing Columbia county vice and gambling:

One count accused Finch of lying in telling the grand jury he never had been in a house of prostitution except on official business. The other charged he lied in denying before the Hudson Police Commission that he was in a brothel when it was raided by state troopers on June 23, 1950.

Finch maintained at the three-day trial that at the time of the state police raid he was in the house on official business—investigating a noise. A defense witness, Police Sgt. William Egan, supported the statement.

Egan was acquitted several months ago after trial on a perjury charge dealing with similar grand jury testimony.

Postcards Are Mailed

New York, June 12 (AP)—Tammany Hall has sent out 41,000 postcards asking enrolled Democrats in Manhattan if they want Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri to be Democratic candidate for mayor. Impellitteri, a Democrat, broke with Tammany in the last mayoralty election and ran as an independent. Carmine G. De Sapio, Tammany leader, announced yesterday the mailing of the cards which, he said, contain squares for "yes" or "no" answers.

All Dates Canceled

Cincinnati, June 12 (AP)—When his girl friend refused to see him James Collins, 19, resorted to what he thought was a bit of clever strategy. He rang a fire alarm in the vicinity of her home hoping that the commotion would bring her out. It didn't. But it did bring the fire department—and the police. Yesterday Municipal Judge Joseph Bruggeman canceled all Jimmy's dates for three months — with a workhouse sentence.

Men Behind Ike —More Specials

(It takes writers, lawyers and military experts to keep the White House staff running in these days of specialists for specialized fields. In this concluding article of four on the men behind Ike, AP Newsfeature Writer Sigrid Arne tells how each fits into the picture of a smoothly-integrated operation—just the sort of organization you might expect from the man who directed SHAEF).

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Washington, June 12 (AP) — Writer Emmet J. Hughes has the most illustrious editor in the country. The man who blue-pencils his work is President Eisenhower.

"He's an excellent editor," Hughes tells you as he strokes his pipe. "He knows just what he wants to say, and he knows the exact words to say it."

In a quiet office overlooking the White House front lawn, Hughes turns out the President's speeches, messages to Congress, proclamations. Other Presidents have had two or three writers and on occasion a whole team. Hughes is the youngest man on Eisenhower's White House staff—he's 32—and the only writer.

Speech Is Example

He works from 8 to 6 unless there's a special job on hand. Then he may work 'round the clock or a weekend. The foreign policy speech which the President made to editors is an example.

"I've forgotten how many conferences we had on that," says Hughes. "It was confidential until released. So I either carried my draft home for work, or it was locked up.

"Some evenings the President had it. He works over my drafts in the evenings. I see him the next morning if it's necessary. I get my ideas from him first, of course. Top policy ideas are talked over by the cabinet and in the 8:30 a. m. White House staff meeting. For fine points of fact, I phone the departments. Congressional leaders are asked for advice, particularly on politics."

Has to Reply

Hughes has to reply to dozens of clubs and cities or towns asking special messages from the President to mark some anniversary or special project. He either writes the messages (which the President OKs) or he declines gracefully.

He has had concentrated assignments in the foreign affairs he must now write about. In 1942-'46 he was with military intelligence in Madrid. Out of that experience he wrote two successful boks, "The Church and the Libera Society," which was a Cathole Book-of-the-Month Club selectin, and "Report From Madrid."

In 946 he went to Rome for the mgazines Life and Time. In 1948 h shifted to Berlin and returned in 1949 to the New York offices.

Jackson Is Another

Another Time-Life graduate on the Eienhower staff is tall, rangy C. D. Jackson, the link between the President and all the phases of the cold war.

"Sometimes I think I should wear ong whiskers and look the part," chuckles Jackson, "but the work is less romantic than it seems My office tries to pull together all the propaganda which can bld our friends or confuse our enmies.

"Thre is practically nothing which can be told about the job excep that I sit in with the cabinet and with the National Securi-ty Cuncil. I see the President when it is necessary—and I make that 8:30 meeting of the White Hous staff."

He gained wide experience in Worll War 2 in the type of work he now heads. He did wartime propaganda work in Italy, Turkey, France and England also.

Jackson is 51 and married. He graduated from Princeton in 1924 and after some years of running his familys importing business joined Time as assistant to the President.

Shanley Handles Tour

The man who has to be certain that all President Eisenhower's moves tie in with the law of the land is a Newark, N. J., lawyer—Bernard M. Shanley. He's 49, with thick gray hair and a constant smile.

Shanley is responsible for finding one spot in which the President can cut down on some of the routine chores of his office. The rafts of papers he has to take in for Eisenhower's signature included many reassignments of naval officers. Eisenhower wondered out loud whether he had to sign them. Shanley dug back through law books to find that the President could issue an order transferring the signing to the chief of naval operations. Shanley is hunting other such possibilities.

President Truman used to say that he signed his name 600 times a day. President Eisenhower is doing it about 200 times a day—and that doesn't include autographs. It all takes time that Eisenhower and his staff feel should be given to serious planning.

Maxwell Rabb, 41, is a Boston lawyer who takes some of the load off the shoulders of Sherman Adams, assistant to the President. Rabb arrives at the White House at 7:30 a. m., to dig out facts which Adams needs for the briefing an hour later.

President Eisenhower's working White House staff is rounded out by the usual four military aides. Three take care of the day-to-day work between the President and the services: Lt. Col. Robert L. Schultz (army), Cmdr. Edward L. Beach (navy) and Maj. William G. Draper (air force). Draper is pilot of the President's personal plane, the "Columbine."

Col. Paul T. Carroll (army) is the link between the White House and the Pentagon on defense policy.

A fifth military officer on the staff—Maj. Gen. Howard Snyder—is the President's physician. Snyder is his own best advertisement. At 72 he is rated by some stenographers as the handsomest man on the staff.

He calls the President an ideal patient:

"He even watches his weight carefully. When he reaches 180 he automatically cuts his eating. I remember the exact hour he stopped smoking. It was at 3 p. m. March 21, 1949. He had an upset stomach. I had convinced him that he had to give up cigarettes for a while, and then I added 'as long as you have to give them up temporarily, why don't you make it permanent?'"

"He had just reached for a cigarette. He stopped midway and put it back. That was his last smoke to date."

As Pegler Sees It

as the incense rising from his father's name deepened into the stench of Yalta.

Clearly, when an agent of a union gives an employer an express or implied command to buy insurance and his help for the agent's own financial profit with the express or implied alternative of a strike, there is restraint of trade. Other insurance companies are automatically blocked out of the deal. These others have better policies and terms to offer. Assuming that the workers are entitled to insurance either at their own or their employers' expense, they should have a right to the best proposition that the market affords. This situation has the look of a conspiracy between a union and an insurance company availing itself of the union's coercive power. The courts have graciously held that a union commits an offense wherever the union injures the business of one company in a conspiracy redounding to the benefit of another company.

Figures in Senatorial Dispute

Sen. Herbert Lehman (D-Lib-N.Y.) talks in his office in Washington, D. C., after a dispute on the Senate floor with Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.). McCarthy accused Lehman of "a rather gross abuse" of the Senate's free mailing privileges. Lehman shouted back that McCarthy was trying to "intimidate" him.

McCarthy, Lehman Stand on Opinion Privilege Abused

Washington, June 12 (AP)—Sens. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) and Lehman (D.-Lib.-N.Y.Y.), accused each other of "smear" tactics, stood today on their contentions that each has abused the Senate's free mailing privilege.

McCarthy touched off the dispute in a Senate speech yesterday. He attributed to Lehman "a rather gross abuse" of the frankling privilege by saying Lehman mailed or tried to mail at the taxpayers' expense 100,000 pieces of literature captioned "Creeping McCarthyism."

Lehman called that a "tissue of fabrications" and fired back a statement that "only last year the postoffice department was trying to collect from Sen. McCarthy a sum of money for mailing, under his franking privilege, a considerable number of commercial advertisements for a book he wrote."

Last October the postoffice said it was trying to figure how much to charge McCarthy for mail it said he sent free and should have paid for. No change in this status has been reported since the Republicans took office in January.

Would Not Be as High

In his attack on Lehman, McCarthy argued the postoffice department deficit would not be as high as it is if members of Congress were "a bit more careful about abusing the privilege of the frank."

McCarthy, first inviting Lehman's attention to what he was about to say, told the Senate that "Mr. Chambers" in the Senate mailing room had blocked the free mailing of 100,000 pieces of anti-McCarthy literature on grounds it could not qualify as official business.

Lehman challenged that, first in the Senate and later in a prepared statement. The New Yorker said "the franking privilege never was in question." What really was involved, he said, was a question of who should do the work of stuffing into 18,000 franked envelopes copies of a speech he had made in New York entitled "Creeping McCarthyism."

John T. Chambers, the "Mr. Chambers" mentioned by McCarthy, has charge of the folding room. He said he has nothing to do with determining what mail is frankable, and said he had refused only to handle the insertion of the material in envelopes.

McCarthy told the Senate: "I don't give a tinker's dam how many smears Lehman sends out about McCarthy. But I insist he pay for them out of his own money."

Said Lehman in his statement: "Sen. McCarthy is up to his old tricks—smear, innuendo and multiple untruths."

Dummy's Deception Lifts Eyebrows

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Every experienced player has made deceptive plays as declarer or as a defender. It is more unusual, however, to make a deceptive play in the dummy—the hand that is in full sight at all times.

South didn't bid six clubs with any certainty that he could make that contract. He just knew that he could not be hurt badly at a club contract, and he was afraid that the opponents could make five hearts.

South might have beaten five hearts if he had opened a low diamond, taken the ace of hearts promptly, and led another low diamond to North's queen in order to get a spade ruff.

But South was better off not even trying to find such a fantastic defense. It was far safer to play the hand at six clubs, especially since a slip in the defense allowed him to make this slam contract.

When West opened the king of hearts, declarer saw that the slam contract depended only on restricting the diamond loss to one trick. He had to do everything in his power to persuade the defenders to discard diamonds.

He ruffed the opening heart led in dummy, led a trump to his hand, and ruffed another low heart in dummy. He then proceeded to lead all but one of his trumps, forcing the opponents to search for safe discards.

As soon as dummy ran out of trumps, declarer discarded a low diamond from the dummy; and on the next round of trumps he discarded another low diamond from the dummy.

By the time that South's hand had been reduced to one trump and three diamonds, West had to decide which four cards to save. Should he save three diamonds and the blank ace of spades? This might allow South to set up a spade trick. It looked safer to hold two spades and only two diamonds, particularly since the diamond discards from the dummy indicated that South was not greatly interested in that suit.

When West reduced to only two diamonds, it was a cinch for South to lead a low diamond from his hand and win two diamond tricks. However, if dummy had carefully saved all of the diamonds, West might have saved three diamonds, and then South would have lost two diamond tricks.

Today—It's Christmas

Kingston, Tenn., June 12 (AP)—It was pretty rough for the fat little guy with whiskers and a red suit, but he finally made it. Today was Christmas for Billy and and Jack Isenhour—by an act of the Tennesseee Legislature. Billy, 11, and Jack, 9, helped State Senator Sterling Roberts in his Campaign last November. Roberts asked his young friends what they wanted as a reward and they came up with a whopper. They said they'd like two Christmases a year. After Roberts took office he introduced a resolution for the extra holiday for the Isenhour youngsters, and the bill passed. So it's Christmas today for Billy and Jack — Christmas tree, presents, and all—topped off by a swimming party and picnic.

Tribute Is Given To Four Teachers

Woodstock, June 12—Tribute was paid Wednesday night to four teachers of the Woodstock Elementary School at a dinner in their honor, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association at Deanies. Two of the teachers are retiring, Mrs. Fred Toms, after 12 years of service, and Mrs. Edna Quick, with 20 years of devotion to the school. Mrs. Howard Bell is leaving after a number of years of service. Mrs. Sylva Hutchins, who has been kindergarten teacher at the school for the past two years, will take a leave of absence.

Commenting on the large number of guests attending, parents, teachers, and former students at the school, Anthony DeLisio, chairman, introduced Mrs. DeLisio, P-TA president, who said that this was a "typical Woodstock tribute."

Mrs. Mary Rapp, chairman of the school board of trustees thanked the four teachers for their years of service. "Teaching is more than a profession," she said, "it's a dedication and a way of life." Speaking as a teacher herself, Mrs. Rapp spoke of the difficulties under which a teacher must work and yet maintain her purposeful and good influence over the students. "On a hot June day the class is restless and eager to be out for the summer vacation. It's on days such as this that teaching is its own reward."

Responsibility Is Great

"We learn a great deal," she continued, "about teaching the whole child. We must teach them the basic skills, but we must teach them much more. Every single thing a teacher says in the classroom goes home to at least one child. That's a great responsibility. There are intangibles that are more important than basic skills."

With particular reference to the Woodstock School Mrs. Rapp observed that "we have had a good faculty here and these teachers have given us a standard of excellence which will be difficult to maintain."

Kenneth Wilson, town supervisor, declared that the most important citizen we have in town is the teacher," noting the great influence the teacher has upon all of the professions. Describing the evils of indoctrination practiced in many countries in the world today, Wilson said that we have "no worries in Woodstock because of the fine common sense methods in practice in our school here." Two important township positions are now being capably and efficiently handled, he stated, by two former students of the Woodstock School, Mrs. Mary Rapp, and Mrs. Marjory Harder, town clerk, and their fine performance is proof in itself of the high standard of teaching at the school.

Merchants Edge Doblers, 6-5, for Fourth Straight in Twi Loop

Maintain First Place Tie With Wiltwyck Nine

Klosterman Wins As Telepas Helps

The Colonial Merchants resorted to the old Yankee formula of one big inning to score a 6-5 squeaker over Dobler's yesterday to maintain their City League first place tie with Wiltwyck Motors.

Both teams have identical 4-0 records and both have had to scramble a few times to keep their slate unblemished.

The big Merchant uprising occurred at the expense of George "No-Hit" Magley in the fourth inning when the Merchants rushed across five runs. That offset some spirited rallying by Doblers in the next two stanzas.

A fifth inning run off reliever, Gerry Bechtold, proved to be the winning marker, although Magley was charged with the loss, his second straight.

Klosterman Wins

Zeke Klosterman, the legendary figure in mountain baseball circles, fired a 4-hitter at the Beermen but had to get sixth-inning relief from southpaw George Telepas to nail down the victory.

Magley and Klosterman were dueling along at a scoreless pace when the Merchants, trailing 1-0, erupted in the fourth.

Chuck Engle's single, a walk to Joe Carlino and an attempted force play at third that fizzled loaded the bases with none out. Magley fanned Klosterman for the first out but on a squeeze play, Mike Carlino beat out the bunt for a hit and Engle scored. Barringer's error on a bad throw permitted the second run to score. Larsen' single delivered Dunham and Carlino. Filipe drove the fifth run across with a single to center.

Lee Barringer collected half of the four Dobler safeties, both well tagged doubles up the left center field alley. Eric Goercke stroked two singles for the Merchants.

Twaalfskill Club Stages Record Men's Day Slate

Member-Guest Play To Start Saturday

Having completed the most successful men's day in recent years Thursday, Twaalfskill Golf Club members are looking forward to the annual Member-Guest tournament which is expected to attract a record field on Saturday and Sunday.

Thursday's program was an elaborate affair that included a women's fashion show by Hilda Lightstone of Woodstock at 3 p. m., a men's match play against par tournament, a roast beef dinner and a putting tournament for men and women.

President Floyd W. Flint said today that early reservations indicate that Twaalfskill members will bring guests from distance points for the Member-Guest play, always one of the most popular features on the yearly golf calendar.

Tremper Wins

Jake Tremper finished 3-under-par with his alloted 19 handicap to take first place in the regular competition.

Robert Russell of Saugerties was 2-under with a 22-handicap. Third place ended in a four-way tie among Dr. Rodney Ball, Fabian Russell, Floyd W. Flint and Edward Remmert.

Seventh place went to Robert Herzog and John J. Van Gonsic took eighth. The Rev. J. Dean Dykstra finished ninth.

Mrs. Edward Minasian needed only 35 strokes, which tied the men's winning mark, to take putting honors for women on the new 18-hole putting green. Mrs. John Van Gonsic equalled par figures with 36 strokes for second place.

Edward Remmert and Dr. T. R. Smalldon tied for first in the men's division with 35 putts. Richard Wood and Dr. Herbert Derman tied for third place with 36 putts.

Carter-Araujo Rated Even Money

New York, June 12 (AP)—Jimmy Carter finally comes home with his world lightweight boxing title tonight after 19 fights on the road, only to find himself no better than even money against 22-year-old George Araujo, nimble Providence, R. I., challenger.

Appearing in New York for the first time since he knocked out Ike Williams to win the championship, May 25, 1951, the 29-year-old Carter faces a stiff battle from an alert, toe dancing boxer-puncher.

The 15-round match at Madison Square Garden, scheduled for 9 p. m. (EST) will be beamed across the nation on radio (ABC) and television (NBC) for a $50,000 fee.

The fight has the boys puzzled. Carter was an early favorite. Then the odds shifted to Araujo. It was pick 'em (6 to 5 and take your choice) yesterday. They probably will climb into the ring at even money.

Four Winners Are Announced In Wiltwyck Golf

Four prize winners in the Weekly Ladies Day competition at Wiltwyck Golf Club were Mrs. J. Watson Bailey, Mrs. Robert Daley, Mrs. Ivan Whitmore and Mrs. Stanley Hankinson.

The women played a one-cent-and-putter tournament. Miss Mayme Hutton was in charge of the day's program. Mrs. Ernest LeFevre will conduct the next weekly program on Wednesday, June 17.

Hogan Threatens Runaway Margin In U. S. Open Golf

Oakmont, Pa., June 12 (AP)—They called it 'Hogan's Open' before it started—this 53rd United States Open golf championship—and the script is unchanged.

It was Ben Hogan and the awe-inspiring Oakmont course in the forecasts. Today it was Hogan in the lead—Hogan against the field. And Oakmont still dared all but the great golfers to challenge par on its wide-stretched fairways and big, wavy greens.

Hogan's place among golf's great players hardly can be challenged after his performance yesterday. The record first day crowd of 8,000 showed little surprise when the unsmiling, chain-smoking Texan methodically fashioned one of the finest rounds ever played over the famous course in the hills bordering the Allegheny River.

The score of 33-34—67 was five strokes under Oakmont's par of 37-35—72 and one over the record established by Jimmy Clark in Wednesday's qualifying round.

That score put Hogan three strokes ahead of his closest pursuers in the field of 157. Among the tournament-toughened stars who had been expected to challenge him, the scores ran like this:

During the 1952 season, 25 grand slam home runs were hit in the American League.

Mary Ann Downey Eastern Titlist

Washington, June 12 (AP) — An attractive Baltimore miss, Mary Ann Downey, reigned today as Women's Eastern Amateur golf champion after a spectacular 37 hole struggle with Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn.

Miss O'Sullivan, the odds-on favorite, built up a five-stroke lead during the first 36 holes.

Miss Downey, then in second place, set off yesterday in the 18-hole final round over the tough 6,063 yard Congressional Country Club course with only the faintest hopes for victory.

On the back nine, Pat was three up with four holes to play but her hitherto steady game collapsed and the icy-nerved Miss Downey won the 15th, 16th, and 17th with pars to tie the match.

That necessitated an 18-hole playoff in which Miss Downey parred 14 straight holes and carried a one-stroke lead to the 16th. But Miss O'Sullivan came through with a birdie three on that hole.

After having halved the 17th, Miss O'Sullivan seemed to have the match all wrapped up, but 3-putted the 18th and the match was squared again. Both recorded 77's for the par 74 course.

Miss Downey wasted no time in winning the sudden death match on the 19th.

Indians Tie Tigers For First Place

Indians scored in five of six innings, including a 7-run blast in the fourth, to upset the league-leading Tigers, 17-8, and gain a tie for first place in the National Little League at Hasbrouck Park.

Jack Fischer, the winning hurler, permitted only four hits, walked five and fanned nine but the Tigers managed to claw at him for eight runs.

Indians raked Don Kruszenski and Gene Spada for nine safeties, including a double by Bill Murphy. Kruszenski fanned six and Spada two. Abe Levy doubled for the Tigers.

Bill Murphy and Norman Heppner had two hits apiece for the Indians, while the four Tiger safeties went to John Hobert, Abe Levy, Gene Spada and Harold Hart.

Dodgers and Yankees Play Seven-Inning 7-7 Game

The Dodgers and Yankees battled seven innings to a 7-7 tie in the American Little League yesterday, after the 1952 champions tied the score in the bottom of the fifth.

Lefty Joe Clark and George Kotrady pitched scoreless ball in the sixth and seventh frames. The game was then called on account of darkness.

Clark permitted eight hits and struck out 10 batters. The Yankees collected nine off George Uhl and George Kotrady, including two each by Jerry McDonough and John Melchior.

Hobart Armstrong maintained his hefty batting average with "2 for 2" both singles and Tom Ashdown pounded a double and single.

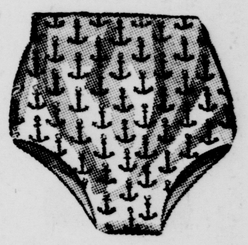

The Dodgers went ahead 3-1 in the first inning but the Yankees scored steadily to go ahead 6-3 going into the bottom of the fourth when the Dodgers rallied to score twice. Yankees pulled ahead, 7-5, in the top of the fifth but the Dodgers came right back with two in their half for a 7-7 deadlock. Clark and Kotrady then settled down to the two scoreless innings.

Joe Enright did the mound chores for Hilltop and scattered nine hits. George Hooker and Alecca divided the twirling for Sicklers.

Mary Ann Downey Eastern Titlist

Washington, June 12 (AP) — An attractive Baltimore miss, Mary Ann Downey, reigned today as Women's Eastern Amateur golf champion after a spectacular 37 hole struggle with Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn.

Miss O'Sullivan, the odds-on favorite, built up a five-stroke lead during the first 36 holes.

Miss Downey, then in second place, set off yesterday in the 18-hole final round over the tough 6,063 yard Congressional Country Club course with only the faintest hopes for victory.

On the back nine, Pat was three up with four holes to play but her hitherto steady game collapsed and the icy-nerved Miss Downey won the 15th, 16th, and 17th with pars to tie the match.

That necessitated an 18-hole playoff in which Miss Downey parred 14 straight holes and carried a one-stroke lead to the 16th. But Miss O'Sullivan came through with a birdie three on that hole.

After having halved the 17th, Miss O'Sullivan seemed to have the match all wrapped up, but 3-putted the 18th and the match was squared again. Both recorded 77's for the par 74 course.

Miss Downey wasted no time in winning the sudden death match on the 19th.

Indians Tie Tigers For First Place

Indians scored in five of six innings, including a 7-run blast in the fourth, to upset the league-leading Tigers, 17-8, and gain a tie for first place in the National Little League at Hasbrouck Park.

Jack Fischer, the winning hurler, permitted only four hits, walked five and fanned nine but the Tigers managed to claw at him for eight runs.

Indians raked Don Kruszenski and Gene Spada for nine safeties, including a double by Bill Murphy. Kruszenski fanned six and Spada two. Abe Levy doubled for the Tigers.

Bill Murphy and Norman Heppner had two hits apiece for the Indians, while the four Tiger safeties went to John Hobert, Abe Levy, Gene Spada and Harold Hart.

Score by innings:

			R	H
Indians	014	714	17	9
Tigers	102	230	8	4

Jack Fischer and Ray Spadafora; Don Kruszenski, Gene Spada and Abe Levy.

Dodgers and Yankees Play Seven-Inning 7-7 Game

The Dodgers and Yankees battled seven innings to a 7-7 tie in the American Little League yesterday, after the 1952 champions tied the score in the bottom of the fifth.

Lefty Joe Clark and George Kotrady pitched scoreless ball in the sixth and seventh frames. The game was then called on account of darkness.

Clark permitted eight hits and struck out 10 batters. The Yankees collected nine off George Uhl and George Kotrady, including two each by Jerry McDonough and John Melchior.

Hobart Armstrong maintained his hefty batting average with "2 for 2" both singles and Tom Ashdown pounded a double and single.

The Dodgers went ahead 3-1 in the first inning but the Yankees scored steadily to go ahead 6-3 going into the bottom of the fourth when the Dodgers rallied to score twice. Yankees pulled ahead, 7-5, in the top of the fifth but the Dodgers came right back with two in their half for a 7-7 deadlock. Clark and Kotrady then settled down to the two scoreless innings.

Score by innings:

			R	H
Yankees	112	210	0—7	9
Dodgers	300	220	0—7	8

Joe Clark and Jerry McDonough; George Uhl, George Kotrady and Jim Volker.

Twaalfskill Club Stages Record Men's Day Slate

Member-Guest Play To Start Saturday

Having completed the most successful men's day in recent years Thursday, Twaalfskill Golf Club members are looking forward to the annual Member-Guest tournament which is expected to attract a record field on Saturday and Sunday.

Thursday's program was an elaborate affair that included a women's fashion show by Hilda Lightstone of Woodstock at 3 p. m., a men's match play against par tournament, a roast beef dinner and a putting tournament for men and women.

President Floyd W. Flint said today that early reservations indicate that Twaalfskill members will bring guests from distance points for the Member-Guest play, always one of the most popular features on the yearly golf calendar.

Tremper Wins

Jake Tremper finished 3-under-par with his alloted 19 handicap to take first place in the regular competition.

Robert Russell of Saugerties was 2-under with a 22-handicap. Third place ended in a four-way tie among Dr. Rodney Ball, Fabian Russell, Floyd W. Flint and Edward Remmert.

Seventh place went to Robert Herzog and John J. Van Gonsic took eighth. The Rev. J. Dean Dykstra finished ninth.

Mrs. Edward Minasian needed only 35 strokes, which tied the men's winning mark, to take putting honors for women on the new 18-hole putting green. Mrs. John Van Gonsic equalled par figures with 36 strokes for second place.

Edward Remmert and Dr. T. R. Smalldon tied for first in the men's division with 35 putts. Richard Wood and Dr. Herbert Derman tied for third place with 36 putts.

Sports of the Day

(IN BRIEF)
(By The Associated Press)

Golf

Washington—Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore defeated Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn., in 37 holes to win the Eastern Amateur championship.

Greensboro, N. C.—Kathy McKinnon of Florida Southern and Pat Lesser of Seattle University entered the semi-finals of the Women's National Intercollegiate tournament by defeating Virginia Dennehy of Northwestern, 3 and 2, and Donna Knox of Rollins, 5 and 3, respectively.

Racing

Boston—Tony Desperito rode five consecutive winners at Suffolk Downs, including Noch Eins ($8.80) in the feature race.

New York—Jockey Ted Atkinson booted home three straight winners, including Powhatan ($6.30) in the Bracadale Handicap at Belmont Park.

Carter-Araujo Rated Even Money

New York, June 12 (AP)—Jimmy Carter finally comes home with his world lightweight boxing title tonight after 19 fights on the road, only to find himself no better than even money against 22-year-old George Araujo, nimble Providence, R. I., challenger.

Appearing in New York for the first time since he knocked out Ike Williams to win the championship, May 25, 1951, the 29-year-old Carter faces a stiff battle from an alert, toe dancing boxer-puncher.

The 15-round match at Madison Square Garden, scheduled for 9 p. m. (EST) will be beamed across the nation on radio (ABC) and television (NBC) for a $50,000 fee.

The fight has the boys puzzled. Carter was an early favorite. Then the odds shifted to Araujo. It was pick 'em (6 to 5 and take your choice) yesterday. They probably will climb into the ring at even money.

Hogan Threatens Runaway Margin In U. S. Open Golf

Oakmont, Pa., June 12 (AP)—They called it 'Hogan's Open' before it started—this 53rd United States Open golf championship—and the script is unchanged.

It was Ben Hogan and the awe-inspiring Oakmont course in the forecasts. Today it was Hogan in the lead—Hogan against the field. And Oakmont still dared all but the great golfers to challenge par on its wide-stretched fairways and big, wavy greens.

Hogan's place among golf's great players hardly can be challenged after his performance yesterday. The record first day crowd of 8,000 showed little surprise when the unsmiling, chain-smoking Texan methodically fashioned one of the finest rounds ever played over the famous course in the hills bordering the Allegheny River.

The score of 33-34—67 was five strokes under Oakmont's par of 37-35—72 and one over the record established by Jimmy Clark in Wednesday's qualifying round.

That score put Hogan three strokes ahead of his closest pursuers in the field of 157. Among the tournament-toughened stars who had been expected to challenge him, the scores ran like this:

During the 1952 season, 25 grand slam home runs were hit in the American League.

Four Winners Are Announced In Wiltwyck Golf

Four prize winners in the Weekly Ladies Day competition at Wiltwyck Golf Club were Mrs. J. Watson Bailey, Mrs. Robert Daley, Mrs. Ivan Whitmore and Mrs. Stanley Hankinson.

The women played a one-cent-and-putter tournament. Miss Mayme Hutton was in charge of the day's program. Mrs. Ernest LeFevre will conduct the next weekly program on Wednesday, June 17.

Milwaukee-Pirate Set Big Chance for Braves

Could Open Wide Gap Over Dodgers

Milwaukee's battling Braves open the season's first six game series tonight in Pittsburgh with a good chance of putting a little daylight between themselves and the onrushing Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Braves, nearing the end of a profitable road trip on which they have won 11 out of 16, hold a 2-0 season's edge over the seventh place Pirates.

Only six percentage points separate Charley Grimm's men from the pesky Dodgers whose weekend opposition isn't exactly terrifying, either. Brooklyn plays last place Chicago four times. The Dodgers split a previous pair with the Cubs.

Surkont Opens

Max Surkont, who's won seven, and Johnny Antonelli, a six game winner, start it off for Milwaukee in tonight's twin bill.

The big American League series starting tonight is at Cleveland where the New York Yankees face the Indians in the first of four.

The Yanks won their 14th in a row yesterday, 6-3, at Detroit. Cleveland lost for the first time in eight games, 2-1, to Washington. Philadelphia edged Chicago, 6-5 and Boston ran the St. Louis Browns' losing streak to 10 with a 7-0 decision.

In the National League Brooklyn made it three straight over Cincinnati, 9-6. New York snapped a five-game Milwaukee spree, 3-1, on three home runs. St. Louis got only four hits but beat Pittsburgh, 5-3. Philadelphia and Chicago had an open date.

The high flying Yankees now lead Cleveland by 6½ games—their greatest first place margin in the five years Casey Stengle has managed them. Home runs by Gene Woodling, Mickey Mantle and Irv Noren settled all doubts as to the outcome of the game in Detroit.

Walt Masterson stopped the Indians on three singles. Ed FitzGerald drove in the winning runs with a bases-loaded single in the seventh.

Zernial Hits 15th

Gus Zernial, the leading home run slugger in the American League, hit a pair at Chicago, raising his total to 15. But it took a bases-empty blast by Eddie Robinson in the ninth inning to give Philadelphia the victory.

Willard Nixon of the Red Sox pitched perfect ball against the Browns until Virgil Trucks doubled with two out in the sixth. St. Louis got only three other hits, all singles.

Behind 6-3 after seven innings the Dodgers finally caught up with Bud Podbielan in the eighth at Brooklyn, pounding home six runs before Rogers Hornsby yanked him. Podbielan allowed 17 hits. The big blows in the the rally were home runs by Gil Hodges with nobody on and Junior Gilliam, with two aboard.

Jim Wilson of the Braves threw three home run balls at the Polo Grounds—one each to Monte Irvin, Whitey Lockman and Hank Thompson. They accounted for all of the Giant scoring as the New Yorkers broke a five game losing streak.

The Cardinals got a lot of mileage out of four hits at Pittsburgh. They scored three runs on just one safety—a single by Ray Jablonski following four walks. The defeat was the sixth straight for knuckleballer Johnny Lindell. He's won twice.

Minus Pool Due If Native Dancer Captures Belmont

New York, June 12 (AP)—Belmont Park officials don't mind paying Native Dancer $100,000 or so for running around their beautiful track but they don't approve of paying his followers for the privilege of wagering on the big grey.

For that reason there's not likely to be any show betting tomorrow when the Dancer faces four other three-year olds in the 85th running of the Belmont stakes.

Twice this year Alfred Vanderbilt's ace has cost New York tracks money at the betting windows. There was a $25,000 minus pool in both place and show when Native Dancer captured the Wood Memorial at Jamaica in April and Belmont Park went into its treasury for $2,440 to pay off the wagers on the son of Polynesian when he won the Withers.

Pimlico also had a $46,000 minus show pool the day the Dancer just beat Jamie K. out of first money in the Preakness.

The names of Eugene Constantin, Jr.'s Royal Bay Gem, Bruce S. Campbell's Maryland-owned Ram O' War and Kamehameha from Robert Kleberg's King Ranch also were expected to be dropped into the entry box this morning.

But it is the prospect of another Native Dancer-Jamie K. duel that is expected to draw upwards of 60,000 fans to the Long Island track. Post time will be around 3:45 p. m. (EST). The race will be given full television and radio treatment from 3:30 to 4 p. m. by CBS.

Yanks Gain First Win In Esopus

Last year's champions in the Esopus Little League are finding the 1953 going a bit rough.

They dropped their third straight, 13 to 10, to the Yankees yesterday in a battle of winless combinations. Two big innings—a six-run fourth and a five-run rally in the sixth—locked up the game for the Yankees.

Indians rallied for two in the bottom of the sixth.

Allen MacIntosh was pretty much the whole show for the Yankees, piling up 14 strikeouts and pounding two doubles and a triple for one third of the nine Yankee safeties. The Indians collected six hits off MacIntosh, including two each by R. Short and W. Jones. Short rapped a double and Severson and Holmes slugged triples.

Nine-year-old Rolfe Krukas broke an 8-8 tie with a bases-loaded single during the Yankees' five-run rally in the sixth. Tom Severson's two-run triple climaxed the uprising.

Score by innings:

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The prize list for the Woodstock Riding Club's seventh annual horse show June 28, recalls the old racetrack gag that horses aren't so dumb. They don't bet on people. And the dandies you see at the horse show rings are of an even superior breed.

In looking over the pertinent data on the show submitted by Mrs. Peg Hard, the Freeman society editor who doubles as show chairman and tub thumper, we couldn't help recalling the awful difference between the $2 bettor at the flat tracks and the patron who attends a well operated horse show. And the annual Woodstock equine fiesta is all of that.

One of the mysteries of the human race, it seems to us, is the way the inveterate horse players eat chalk—betting on horses at unnatural odds. The man who pays the admission fee for a horse show sees magnificent animals at their best. He gets a lift from it. The $2 flat track guy gets a hosing—but he keeps coming back.

We've always felt that a horse show is a place populated by dogs covered with spots and carrying spikes for tails; French poodles trying to look like Madame Pompadour; kids licking cotton candy; kids selling lemons that are ventilated for easy nourishment; ladies wearing men's derbies; men wearing Tattersall vests, and, last but not least, horses wearing ribbons.

The horses at a horse show are of infinite variety, but not of the variety that runs around a one-mile oval and then sends you home without a cent in your pocket. If a horse at a horse show wins, all his owner gets is a ribbon and an amount of cash insufficient to keep either animal or owner in hay for a week.

Some of the horse show terms are most confusing to the long suffering flat track addict . . . terms like three-gaited, five-gaited working hunters . . . open jumpers . . . working hunter hacks. Only the last word strikes a responsive chord in the $2 man.

Now take the five-gaited horse. The manual says that he can walk or run five different and distinct ways, but mostly with his front knees bopping him on the chin. That revelation comes as a terrible shock to the frustrated $2 guy who has spent years searching for the nag that can run in a straight line for just two minutes and not finish with a dozen nags blocking his view.

You may even see a five-gaited horse with his tail hung neatly on a nearby nail. Don't be alarmed, the horse isn't in trouble. This requires some explanation. For reasons of fashion, five-gaited saddle horses must come into the show ring equipped with flowing mane and full tail, even if they are victims of hereditary baldness. Very few horses develop full-fashioned tails of their own accord, and this means that their owners must supply them with rear-end toupees.

It's not unusual in a tallyho contest to see four Shetland ponies canter eight miles, pulling maybe five people, including two boys and a man wearing derbies, and one horn-tooter wearing a red coat and brown beaver hat. Another team might follow with 12 people, including six heavyweight black beavers. The third four-in-hand may also lug 12 riders, who might pare their weight down to four beavers.

Then there is a division called Class 36, pair of Harness Horses over 14.2 "to be judged on performance, quality and manners." Both drivers are apt to be middle-aged males wearing aprons. These and other wondrous items are yours at a horse show like the Woodstock event on June 28.

The judges are important folks in a horse show . . . just like the umpire at a big league ball game. After what seems an eternity, during which the honorable judges will scan withers, pasterns, hocks, and osselets (belonging to the horses, of course) the blue ribbons are passed out.

In most cases the jockeys are most pleasing to the male eye, especially when they are blondes or brunettes. If the handicapper is engulfed in a moment of indecision, you can bet the ribbon always goes to the blonde.

Selecting competent judges is a big responsibility for horse show people. The Woodstock folks have come up with one of the best in the business in Malcolm Grahame, prominent horseman of the Rombout Hunt in Dutchess county. Mr. Grahame is just about tops in his field. He will go in deep consultation with himself on entries in the hunters, jumpers and equitation classes.

Roger Young will have the last word in the saddle horse class. But there is quite a story attached to one of the other judges—a John A. Beach, who got himself lost in the Belgian Congo for several months after having miserable luck at the $50 window at Belmont.

Woodstock officials, wanting him desperately for their show, finally located him despairing of civilization in a grass hut deep in the Dark Continent. Would he return to civilization for just one more try?

"Purely in the interest of improving the breed, I shall return for your show," he told the Woodstock committee who waited on him. Sounds fantastic? Mrs. Hard swears it's the gospel truth.

Milwaukee-Pirate Set Big Chance for Braves

Could Open Wide Gap Over Dodgers

Milwaukee's battling Braves open the season's first six game series tonight in Pittsburgh with a good chance of putting a little daylight between themselves and the onrushing Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Braves, nearing the end of a profitable road trip on which they have won 11 out of 16, hold a 2-0 season's edge over the seventh place Pirates.

Only six percentage points separate Charley Grimm's men from the pesky Dodgers whose weekend opposition isn't exactly terrifying, either. Brooklyn plays last place Chicago four times. The Dodgers split a previous pair with the Cubs.

Surkont Opens

Max Surkont, who's won seven, and Johnny Antonelli, a six game winner, start it off for Milwaukee in tonight's twin bill.

The big American League series starting tonight is at Cleveland where the New York Yankees face the Indians in the first of four.

The Yanks won their 14th in a row yesterday, 6-3, at Detroit. Cleveland lost for the first time in eight games, 2-1, to Washington. Philadelphia edged Chicago, 6-5 and Boston ran the St. Louis Browns' losing streak to 10 with a 7-0 decision.

In the National League Brooklyn made it three straight over Cincinnati, 9-6. New York snapped a five-game Milwaukee spree, 3-1, on three home runs. St. Louis got only four hits but beat Pittsburgh, 5-3. Philadelphia and Chicago had an open date.

The high flying Yankees now lead Cleveland by 6½ games—their greatest first place margin in the five years Casey Stengle has managed them. Home runs by Gene Woodling, Mickey Mantle and Irv Noren settled all doubts as to the outcome of the game in Detroit.

Walt Masterson stopped the Indians on three singles. Ed FitzGerald drove in the winning runs with a bases-loaded single in the seventh.

Zernial Hits 15th

Gus Zernial, the leading home run slugger in the American League, hit a pair at Chicago, raising his total to 15. But it took a bases-empty blast by Eddie Robinson in the ninth inning to give Philadelphia the victory.

Willard Nixon of the Red Sox pitched perfect ball against the Browns until Virgil Trucks doubled with two out in the sixth. St. Louis got only three other hits, all singles.

Behind 6-3 after seven innings the Dodgers finally caught up with Bud Podbielan in the eighth at Brooklyn, pounding home six runs before Rogers Hornsby yanked him. Podbielan allowed 17 hits. The big blows in the the rally were home runs by Gil Hodges with nobody on and Junior Gilliam, with two aboard.

Jim Wilson of the Braves threw three home run balls at the Polo Grounds—one each to Monte Irvin, Whitey Lockman and Hank Thompson. They accounted for all of the Giant scoring as the New Yorkers broke a five game losing streak.

The Cardinals got a lot of mileage out of four hits at Pittsburgh. They scored three runs on just one safety—a single by Ray Jablonski following four walks. The defeat was the sixth straight for knuckleballer Johnny Lindell. He's won twice.

Minus Pool Due If Native Dancer Captures Belmont

New York, June 12 (AP)—Belmont Park officials don't mind paying Native Dancer $100,000 or so for running around their beautiful track but they don't approve of paying his followers for the privilege of wagering on the big grey.

For that reason there's not likely to be any show betting tomorrow when the Dancer faces four other three-year olds in the 85th running of the Belmont stakes.

Twice this year Alfred Vanderbilt's ace has cost New York tracks money at the betting windows. There was a $25,000 minus pool in both place and show when Native Dancer captured the Wood Memorial at Jamaica in April and Belmont Park went into its treasury for $2,440 to pay off the wagers on the son of Polynesian when he won the Withers.

Pimlico also had a $46,000 minus show pool the day the Dancer just beat Jamie K. out of first money in the Preakness.

The names of Eugene Constantin, Jr.'s Royal Bay Gem, Bruce S. Campbell's Maryland-owned Ram O' War and Kamehameha from Robert Kleberg's King Ranch also were expected to be dropped into the entry box this morning.

But it is the prospect of another Native Dancer-Jamie K. duel that is expected to draw upwards of 60,000 fans to the Long Island track. Post time will be around 3:45 p. m. (EST). The race will be given full television and radio treatment from 3:30 to 4 p. m. by CBS.

Yanks Gain First Win In Esopus

Last year's champions in the Esopus Little League are finding the 1953 going a bit rough.

They dropped their third straight, 13 to 10, to the Yankees yesterday in a battle of winless combinations. Two big innings—a six-run fourth and a five-run rally in the sixth—locked up the game for the Yankees.

Indians rallied for two in the bottom of the sixth.

Allen MacIntosh was pretty much the whole show for the Yankees, piling up 14 strikeouts and pounding two doubles and a triple for one third of the nine Yankee safeties. The Indians collected six hits off MacIntosh, including two each by R. Short and W. Jones. Short rapped a double and Severson and Holmes slugged triples.

Nine-year-old Rolfe Krukas broke an 8-8 tie with a bases-loaded single during the Yankees' five-run rally in the sixth. Tom Severson's two-run triple climaxed the uprising.

Score by innings:

Snap Up First

Westbury, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Snap Up took command on the far turn and pulled off to a three-length victory last night in the Lynbrook Pace at Roosevelt Raceway. Driven by Howard Camden and owned by J. S. Turner of Nassawadox, Va., Snap Up paced the mile in 2:04.1. Quiet Guy held off on-coming Reyno Worthy for the place position. The winner returned $15.30 for $2 in recording its first victory in seven starts this year.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The prize list for the Woodstock Riding Club's seventh annual horse show June 28, recalls the old racetrack gag that horses aren't so dumb. They don't bet on people. And the dandies you see at the horse show rings are of an even superior breed.

In looking over the pertinent data on the show submitted by Mrs. Peg Hard, the Freeman society editor who doubles as show chairman and tub thumper, we couldn't help recalling the awful difference between the $2 bettor at the flat tracks and the patron who attends a well operated horse show. And the annual Woodstock equine fiesta is all of that.

One of the mysteries of the human race, it seems to us, is the way the inveterate horse players eat chalk—betting on horses at unnatural odds. The man who pays the admission fee for a horse show sees magnificent animals at their best. He gets a lift from it. The $2 flat track guy gets a hosing—but he keeps coming back.

We've always felt that a horse show is a place populated by dogs covered with spots and carrying spikes for tails; French poodles trying to look like Madame Pompadour; kids licking cotton candy; kids selling lemons that are ventilated for easy nourishment; ladies wearing men's derbies; men wearing Tattersall vests, and, last but not least, horses wearing ribbons.

The horses at a horse show are of infinite variety, but not of the variety that runs around a one-mile oval and then sends you home without a cent in your pocket. If a horse at a horse show wins, all his owner gets is a ribbon and an amount of cash insufficient to keep either animal or owner in hay for a week.

Some of the horse show terms are most confusing to the long suffering flat track addict . . . terms like three-gaited, five-gaited working hunters . . . open jumpers . . . working hunter hacks. Only the last word strikes a responsive chord in the $2 man.

Now take the five-gaited horse. The manual says that he can walk or run five different and distinct ways, but mostly with his front knees bopping him on the chin. That revelation comes as a terrible shock to the frustrated $2 guy who has spent years searching for the nag that can run in a straight line for just two minutes and not finish with a dozen nags blocking his view.

You may even see a five-gaited horse with his tail hung neatly on a nearby nail. Don't be alarmed, the horse isn't in trouble. This requires some explanation. For reasons of fashion, five-gaited saddle horses must come into the show ring equipped with flowing mane and full tail, even if they are victims of hereditary baldness. Very few horses develop full-fashioned tails of their own accord, and this means that their owners must supply them with rear-end toupees.

It's not unusual in a tallyho contest to see four Shetland ponies canter eight miles, pulling maybe five people, including two boys and a man wearing derbies, and one horn-tooter wearing a red coat and brown beaver hat. Another team might follow with 12 people, including six heavyweight black beavers. The third four-in-hand may also lug 12 riders, who might pare their weight down to four beavers.

Then there is a division called Class 36, pair of Harness Horses over 14.2 "to be judged on performance, quality and manners." Both drivers are apt to be middle-aged males wearing aprons. These and other wondrous items are yours at a horse show like the Woodstock event on June 28.

The judges are important folks in a horse show . . . just like the umpire at a big league ball game. After what seems an eternity, during which the honorable judges will scan withers, pasterns, hocks, and osselets (belonging to the horses, of course) the blue ribbons are passed out.

In most cases the jockeys are most pleasing to the male eye, especially when they are blondes or brunettes. If the handicapper is engulfed in a moment of indecision, you can bet the ribbon always goes to the blonde.

Selecting competent judges is a big responsibility for horse show people. The Woodstock folks have come up with one of the best in the business in Malcolm Grahame, prominent horseman of the Rombout Hunt in Dutchess county. Mr. Grahame is just about tops in his field. He will go in deep consultation with himself on entries in the hunters, jumpers and equitation classes.

Roger Young will have the last word in the saddle horse class. But there is quite a story attached to one of the other judges—a John A. Beach, who got himself lost in the Belgian Congo for several months after having miserable luck at the $50 window at Belmont.

Woodstock officials, wanting him desperately for their show, finally located him despairing of civilization in a grass hut deep in the Dark Continent. Would he return to civilization for just one more try?

"Purely in the interest of improving the breed, I shall return for your show," he told the Woodstock committee who waited on him. Sounds fantastic? Mrs. Hard swears it's the gospel truth.

Armistice Appears

air in front of a U. S. Army engineers unit near the British legation compound, but no one was injured and their origin was not known, the U. S. Army provost marshal's office said.

Strike Continues

In front of the American embassy in Pusan, a sitdown and hunger strike by about 300 crippled and wounded South Korean veterans continued today.

The veterans—including amputees in wheelchairs — began the demonstration Thursday night and insisted it would continue until they receive answers to messages given embassy officials for delivery to President Eisenhower. Contents of the message were not made public.

President Rhee returned to Seoul after a trip to a southern airfield where he presented the First Marine Air Wing with a second South Korean presidential unit citation.

He spoke briefly, praising the marine fliers for "fighting side by side with us in defense against a common enemy," but did not mention the truce situation.

Knew Nothing of Threat

Government officials said they knew nothing of a reported threat by UN officials to cut off military and economic aid to South Korea unless it accepts the truce.

South Korea's ambassador to the U. S., Dr. You Chan Yang, made the charge Thursday night at Philadelphia.

In Europe, Communist satellites Czechoslovakia and Poland announced they would serve on a five-nation commission to take custody of Korean war prisoners refusing repatriation.

Sweden earlier accepted a nomination to the commission.

Switzerland first said it could not serve if South Korea objects to the armistice, but later gave a qualified acceptance.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru said his country is prepared to serve, but would have to reconsider if South Korea breaks with the UN command.

The commission would take custody of some 47,000 allied-held POWs who refuse to return to communism for a period of 90 days while they hear Red representatives' "explanations" and "assurances."

India would serve as chairman and would supply all troops to guard the prisoners.

However, South Korea has threatened violence to any Indian troops or Red representatives who land in South Korea without South Korean approval.

Sharper Slashes

European defense community is formed.

Rep. Richards (D.-S.C.), author of the amendment, said he hoped it would spur European parliaments into ratifying the treaty to set up an international army. Only West Germany has approved this treaty.

The amendment, approved by a 2-1 majority, would earmark one half of European military aid for the European defense community.

Congress appropriated $6,031,000,000 for foreign aid last year, after cutting Truman's request by 25 per cent.

Eisenhower sliced more than two billion dollars from the $7,600,000,000 Truman budget in two successive cuts this time. Eisenhower was described as "pleading" with House committee leaders, at a conference Tuesday, to get them to prevent further slashes.

It was felt in some quarters that this personal appeal by Eisenhower dissuaded some members who had talked of big scale reductions.

Four of the major cuts were proposed by Rep. Fulton (R.-Pa.) and a fifth was sponsored by Rep. Javits (R.-N. Y.) Both are known as Eisenhower supporters who, last session, fought against heavy slashes.

The House measure would authorize these main expenditures:

European military aid—$2,079,689,750, a cut of 100 million dollars in Eisenhower's program.

Near Eastern military aid—$305,212,637, a reduction of 100 million.

Defense support funds for Europe—200 million dollars, a cut of 100 million.

Far Eastern military aid—$1,081,620,493, unchanged.

Latin American military assistance—15 millions, unchanged.

Other economic funds to stimulate production of military equipment—684 millions, unchanged.

Economic aid to underdeveloped areas—453,634,500, unchanged.

Korean relief—71 millions, unchanged.

Local Man's Tip

up the hill toward Hudson, and then he backtracked again and when he stopped a second time to converse with the school traffic patrolman, he noticed the men change direction and start back down the hill.

Riehl proceeded to police headquarters, where he gave the information to Sgt. William Egan.

Riehl Is Praised

Sgt. Egan dispatched a patrol car, and police captured Shanks. Schmit broke for the marsh and police, troopers and others were immediately alerted, and began to draw tight lines around the two-mile-square swamp.

The time of Shanks' capture was entered on police records as 2:55 p. m.

Sgt. Egan told The Freeman this morning that Riehl's action was "very good observation."

Schmit, last of the escapees to be captured, came out of the swamp about 3 a. m. He was unarmed, but according to an Associated Press report, he tried to kick and punch troopers before he was subdued. He suffered bruises.

He said he hadn't eaten in three days, and "just came out."

The trio, tagged by hospital authorities as "extremely dangerous," sawed their way to freedom at Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Beacon, 50 miles south of Hudson, on Sunday.

Since their escape, jittery area residents had kept close watch on their children, had been careful about picking up hitchhikers and some in lonely hamlets even kept guns within reach.

All three had been adjudged insane and committed to the state hospital before trial. Shanks was accused of killing a man in a Brooklyn tavern brawl. Wood was accused of shooting three persons to death at a Christmas Eve party in Oneonta in 1945, and Schmit had been charged with holding two girls prisoner in his apartment and raping one of them under threat of a shotgun and knife.

Malenkov Ends

powerfully the Soviet "international authority" often referred to in the Soviet press.

While this building goes on at home, the USSR can be expected to bend every effort to break up any non-Communist coalition, to divide the non-Communist world, and to wait for economic dislocations abroad. All the evidence today points to this: That the USSR is sure the capitalist economic crisis is near at hand.

The Malenkov-Beria-Molotov regime appears to be gambling on the "deepening crisis of world capitalism." If that crisis should materialize, the USSR would be free to direct the expansion of Communist domination by the use of internal nationalist forces in the countries of Asia, the Middle East and Africa. If the crisis does not materialize, the USSR will have had a waiting period to build its internal strength.

But a new act in the drama of the struggle for power may upset Soviet plans. The coalition may last a year or two or even more. But while the struggle is unresolved, the USSR in all probability will do all possible to avoid the risk of war.

Condition Satisfactory

Boston, June 12 (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was reported today in satisfactory condition and continuing to gain strength at the New England Baptist Hospital. He was operated on Wednesday to correct a main bile duct obstruction.

U. S. Troops Repel

ready for anything the Chinese throw at us tonight."

"Why do you think they're willing to waste so much manpower, like they have the last two nights?" Willoughby asked.

"If they're serious about an armistice it's silly for them to keep running into our superior fire power."

Heavy fighting was reported in the 3,000 foot mountains of the east central front where two Chinese regiments cracked through main line positions Wednesday.

A Chinese force of about 9,500 men charged through the ROKs and moved along a curving ridgeline to the southwest. ROK counterattacks pinched from both sides and the Reds were apparently stopped.

Comunist troops dug in on three allied main line hill positions were battling hand to hand with counterattacking South Koreans at last reports.

South Koreans killed and wounded 188 Chinese early today in hurling back 600 Reds who attacked two outposts on Sniper Ridge and a position northwest of Kumhwa on the central front, the army said.

Red troops pulled off Christmas Hill on the eastern front in the face of a counterattack by bayonet wielding South Koreans, then drove back to the crest late in the day, the army said.

ROK forces counter-attacked again before dusk.

The Eighth Army said there were 'an unknown number of casualties" among allied troops on the east central front Wednesday when an allied plane accidentally strafed UN lines. The army said the plane was protecting a downed allied pilot when it "strafed friendly frontline positions."

Thunder storms and heavy weather grounded most aircraft during the night but a handful of radar directed strikes were flown against scattered troops and supply points.

A friendly welcome awaits you

Armistice Appears

air in front of a U. S. Army engineers unit near the British legation compound, but no one was injured and their origin was not known, the U. S. Army provost marshal's office said.

Strike Continues

In front of the American embassy in Pusan, a sitdown and hunger strike by about 300 crippled and wounded South Korean veterans continued today.

The veterans—including amputees in wheelchairs—began the demonstration Thursday night and insisted it would continue until they receive answers to messages given embassy officials for delivery to President Eisenhower. Contents of the message were not made public.

President Rhee returned to Seoul after a trip to a southern airfield where he presented the First Marine Air Wing with a second South Korean presidential unit citation.

He spoke briefly, praising the marine fliers for "fighting side by side with us in defense against a common enemy," but did not mention the truce situation.

Knew Nothing of Threat

Government officials said they knew nothing of a reported threat by UN officials to cut off military and economic aid to South Korea unless it accepts the truce.

South Korea's ambassador to the U. S., Dr. You Chan Yang, made the charge Thursday night at Philadelphia.

In Europe, Communist satellites Czechoslovakia and Poland announced they would serve on a five-nation commission to take custody of Korean war prisoners refusing repatriation.

Sweden earlier accepted a nomination to the commission.

Switzerland first said it could not serve if South Korea objects to the armistice, but later gave a qualified acceptance.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru said his country is prepared to serve, but would have to reconsider if South Korea breaks with the UN command.

The commission would take custody of some 47,000 allied-held POWs who refuse to return to communism for a period of 90 days while they hear Red representatives' "explanations" and "assurances."

India would serve as chairman and would supply all troops to guard the prisoners.

However, South Korea has threatened violence to any Indian troops or Red representatives who land in South Korea without South Korean approval.

Sharper Slashes

European defense community is formed.

Rep. Richards (D.-S.C.), author of the amendment, said he hoped it would spur European parliaments into ratifying the treaty to set up an international army. Only West Germany has approved this treaty.

The amendment, approved by a 2-1 majority, would earmark one half of European military aid for the European defense community.

Congress appropriated $6,031,000,000 for foreign aid last year, after cutting Truman's request by 25 per cent.

Eisenhower sliced more than two billion dollars from the $7,600,000,000 Truman budget in two successive cuts this time. Eisenhower was described as "pleading" with House committee leaders, at a conference Tuesday, to get them to prevent further slashes.

It was felt in some quarters that this personal appeal by Eisenhower dissuaded some members who had talked of big scale reductions.

Four of the major cuts were proposed by Rep. Fulton (R.-Pa.) and a fifth was sponsored by Rep. Javits (R.-N. Y.) Both are known as Eisenhower supporters who, last session, fought against heavy slashes.

The House measure would authorize these main expenditures:

European military aid—$2,079,689,750, a cut of 100 million dollars in Eisenhower's program.

Near Eastern military aid—$305,212,637, a reduction of 100 million.

Defense support funds for Europe—200 million dollars, a cut of 100 million.

Far Eastern military aid—$1,081,620,493, unchanged.

Latin American military assistance—15 millions, unchanged.

Other economic funds to stimulate production of military equipment—684 millions, unchanged.

Economic aid to underdeveloped areas—453,634,500, unchanged.

Korean relief—71 millions, unchanged.

Bicycle Theft Checked

Detectives were checking today the theft of a bicycle from Margaret Sill of 296 Broadway. Miss Sill reported it stolen yesterday at 5:36 p. m. and said the blue and white cycle is worth $45.

Doc Smithers says he has some patients in their fifties who can hardly wait to be 65 when they can begin to enjoy their bad health through full tax deduction of medical expenses.

Local Man's Tip

up the hill toward Hudson, and then he backtracked again and when he stopped a second time to converse with the school traffic patrolman, he noticed the men change direction and start back down the hill.

Riehl proceeded to police headquarters, where he gave the information to Sgt. William Egan.

Riehl Is Praised

Sgt. Egan dispatched a patrol car, and police captured Shanks. Schmit broke for the marsh and police, troopers and others were immediately alerted, and began to draw tight lines around the two-mile-square swamp.

The time of Shanks' capture was entered on police records as 2:55 p. m.

Sgt. Egan told The Freeman this morning that Riehl's action was "very good observation."

Schmit, last of the escapees to be captured, came out of the swamp about 3 a. m. He was unarmed, but according to an Associated Press report, he tried to kick and punch troopers before he was subdued. He suffered bruises.

He said he hadn't eaten in three days, and "just came out."

The trio, tagged by hospital authorities as "extremely dangerous," sawed their way to freedom at Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Beacon, 50 miles south of Hudson, on Sunday.

Since their escape, jittery area residents had kept close watch on their children, had been careful about picking up hitchhikers and some in lonely hamlets even kept guns within reach.

All three had been adjudged insane and committed to the state hospital before trial. Shanks was accused of killing a man in a Brooklyn tavern brawl. Wood was accused of shooting three persons to death at a Christmas Eve party in Oneonta in 1945, and Schmit had been charged with holding two girls prisoner in his apartment and raping one of them under threat of a shotgun and knife.

Malenkov Ends

powerfully the Soviet "international authority" often referred to in the Soviet press.

While this building goes on at home, the USSR can be expected to bend every effort to break up any non-Communist coalition, to divide the non-Communist world, and to wait for economic dislocations abroad. All the evidence today points to this: That the USSR is sure the capitalist economic crisis is near at hand.

The Malenkov-Beria-Molotov regime appears to be gambling on the "deepening crisis of world capitalism." If that crisis should materialize, the USSR would be free to direct the expansion of Communist domination by the use of internal nationalist forces in the countries of Asia, the Middle East and Africa. If the crisis does not materialize, the USSR will have had a waiting period to build its internal strength.

But a new act in the drama of the struggle for power may upset Soviet plans. The coalition may last a year or two or even more. But while the struggle is unresolved, the USSR in all probability will do all possible to avoid the risk of war.

Condition Satisfactory

Boston, June 12 (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was reported today in satisfactory condition and continuing to gain strength at the New England Baptist Hospital. He was operated on Wednesday to correct a main bile duct obstruction.

ready for anything the Chinese throw at us tonight."

"Why do you think they're willing to waste so much manpower, like they have the last two nights?" Willoughby asked.

"If they're serious about an armistice it's silly for them to keep running into our superior fire power."

Heavy fighting was reported in the 3,000 foot mountains of the east central front where two Chinese regiments cracked through main line positions Wednesday.

A Chinese force of about 9,500 men charged through the ROKs and moved along a curving ridgeline to the southwest. ROK counterattacks pinched from both sides and the Reds were apparently stopped.

Comunist troops dug in on three allied main line hill positions were battling hand to hand with counterattacking South Koreans at last reports.

South Koreans killed and wounded 188 Chinese early today in hurling back 600 Reds who attacked two outposts on Sniper Ridge and a position northwest of Kumhwa on the central front, the army said.

Red troops pulled off Christmas Hill on the eastern front in the face of a counterattack by bayonet wielding South Koreans, then drove back to the crest late in the day, the army said.

ROK forces counter-attacked again before dusk.

The Eighth Army said there were 'an unknown number of casualties" among allied troops on the east central front Wednesday when an allied plane accidentally strafed UN lines. The army said the plane was protecting a downed allied pilot when it "strafed friendly frontline positions."

Thunder storms and heavy weather grounded most aircraft during the night but a handful of radar directed strikes were flown against scattered troops and supply points.

Bathing Banned In Esopus Creek

Dr. Dudley Hargrave, Ulster county commissioner of health, today banned bathing in the Esopus creek from the city of Kingston to the Cantine Dam at Saugerties. The reason for this action is the present discharge of approximately 1.5 million gallons of sewage per day to the Esopus creek from the city of Kingston.

A serious break has occurred in the main trunk sewer of the city of Kingston on O'Neil street carrying the sewage from the northwest section of the city including Roosevelt Park. The city is operating on a 24-hour schedule to repair the break.

Discharge to the Esopus creek is taking place through the storm sewage system of the second and ninth wards where overflow through old type manholes is occurring. This condition is presently beyond the control of the city and the city officials are making every effort to correct the situation.

Forecast Through June

New York, June 12 (AP) — Weather forecast for the Middle Atlantic states and eastern New York, tomorrow through Wednesday: Temperatures will average one to four degrees below normal. Warmer Saturday, somewhat cooler Sunday, warmer in south portion Tuesday. Scattered showers or thunderstorms mostly over south portion Saturday and showers likely Monday or Tuesday. Bathing Banned In Esopus Creek

Dr. Dudley Hargrave, Ulster county commissioner of health, today banned bathing in the Esopus creek from the city of Kingston to the Cantine Dam at Saugerties. The reason for this action is the present discharge of approximately 1.5 million gallons of sewage per day to the Esopus creek from the city of Kingston.

A serious break has occurred in the main trunk sewer of the city of Kingston on O'Neil street carrying the sewage from the northwest section of the city including Roosevelt Park. The city is operating on a 24-hour schedule to repair the break.

Discharge to the Esopus creek is taking place through the storm sewage system of the second and ninth wards where overflow through old type manholes is occurring. This condition is presently beyond the control of the city and the city officials are making every effort to correct the situation.
